

JOSÉ M. BANDERA

México

France

José M. Bandera

He is the son of an old military leader that fought for our independence, and came from the Isonic State of Guerrero. José Bandera when twelve years of age already knew Latin, and in January 1850 he received the title of physician and surgeon. About that time minister Zarco appointed him as assistant in the insane asylums. Owing to his father's illness he had to leave the capital and go to live at Pachuca. There he practised his profession during a period of seven years, performed the duties of prison physician, and zealously contributed to establish the hospital in the old convent of San Francisco.

Il est le fils d'un ancien chef de guerre qui a combattu pour notre indépendance, et qui vint de l'Etat d'Isonic, au Mexique. José Bandera à douze ans savait déjà le latin, et en Janvier 1850 il obtint le titre de médecin et de chirurgien. Vers ce temps le ministre Zarco le nomma adjoint des hôpitaux des fous. Une maladie de son père le fit abandonner la capitale et se fixer à Pachuca. Exerça sa profession dans cette ville pendant sept ans, et remplit l'emploi de médecin des prisons; il contribua puissamment à l'établissement de l'Hôpital dans l'ancien couvent de San Francisco.

He is the son of an old military leader that fought for our independence, and came from the Isonic State of Guerrero. José Bandera when twelve years of age already knew Latin, and in January 1850 he received the title of physician and surgeon. About that time minister Zarco appointed him as assistant in the insane asylums. Owing to his father's illness he had to leave the capital and go to live at Pachuca. There he practised his profession during a period of seven years, performed the duties of prison physician, and zealously contributed to establish the hospital in the old convent of San Francisco.

He is the son of an old military leader that fought for our independence, and came from the Isonic State of Guerrero. José Bandera when twelve years of age already knew Latin, and in January 1850 he received the title of physician and surgeon. About that time minister Zarco appointed him as assistant in the insane asylums. Owing to his father's illness he had to leave the capital and go to live at Pachuca. There he practised his profession during a period of seven years, performed the duties of prison physician, and zealously contributed to establish the hospital in the old convent of San Francisco.

He is the son of an old military leader that fought for our independence, and came from the Isonic State of Guerrero. José Bandera when twelve years of age already knew Latin, and in January 1850 he received the title of physician and surgeon. About that time minister Zarco appointed him as assistant in the insane asylums. Owing to his father's illness he had to leave the capital and go to live at Pachuca. There he practised his profession during a period of seven years, performed the duties of prison physician, and zealously contributed to establish the hospital in the old convent of San Francisco.

He is the son of an old military leader that fought for our independence, and came from the Isonic State of Guerrero. José Bandera when twelve years of age already knew Latin, and in January 1850 he received the title of physician and surgeon. About that time minister Zarco appointed him as assistant in the insane asylums. Owing to his father's illness he had to leave the capital and go to live at Pachuca. There he practised his profession during a period of seven years, performed the duties of prison physician, and zealously contributed to establish the hospital in the old convent of San Francisco.

He is the son of an old military leader that fought for our independence, and came from the Isonic State of Guerrero. José Bandera when twelve years of age already knew Latin, and in January 1850 he received the title of physician and surgeon. About that time minister Zarco appointed him as assistant in the insane asylums. Owing to his father's illness he had to leave the capital and go to live at Pachuca. There he practised his profession during a period of seven years, performed the duties of prison physician, and zealously contributed to establish the hospital in the old convent of San Francisco.

He is the son of an old military leader that fought for our independence, and came from the Isonic State of Guerrero. José Bandera when twelve years of age already knew Latin, and in January 1850 he received the title of physician and surgeon. About that time minister Zarco appointed him as assistant in the insane asylums. Owing to his father's illness he had to leave the capital and go to live at Pachuca. There he practised his profession during a period of seven years, performed the duties of prison physician, and zealously contributed to establish the hospital in the old convent of San Francisco.

He is the son of an old military leader that fought for our independence, and came from the Isonic State of Guerrero. José Bandera when twelve years of age already knew Latin, and in January 1850 he received the title of physician and surgeon. About that time minister Zarco appointed him as assistant in the insane asylums. Owing to his father's illness he had to leave the capital and go to live at Pachuca. There he practised his profession during a period of seven years, performed the duties of prison physician, and zealously contributed to establish the hospital in the old convent of San Francisco.

He is the son of an old military leader that fought for our independence, and came from the Isonic State of Guerrero. José Bandera when twelve years of age already knew Latin, and in January 1850 he received the title of physician and surgeon. About that time minister Zarco appointed him as assistant in the insane asylums. Owing to his father's illness he had to leave the capital and go to live at Pachuca. There he practised his profession during a period of seven years, performed the duties of prison physician, and zealously contributed to establish the hospital in the old convent of San Francisco.

He is the son of an old military leader that fought for our independence, and came from the Isonic State of Guerrero. José Bandera when twelve years of age already knew Latin, and in January 1850 he received the title of physician and surgeon. About that time minister Zarco appointed him as assistant in the insane asylums. Owing to his father's illness he had to leave the capital and go to live at Pachuca. There he practised his profession during a period of seven years, performed the duties of prison physician, and zealously contributed to establish the hospital in the old convent of San Francisco.

He is the son of an old military leader that fought for our independence, and came from the Isonic State of Guerrero. José Bandera when twelve years of age already knew Latin, and in January 1850 he received the title of physician and surgeon. About that time minister Zarco appointed him as assistant in the insane asylums. Owing to his father's illness he had to leave the capital and go to live at Pachuca. There he practised his profession during a period of seven years, performed the duties of prison physician, and zealously contributed to establish the hospital in the old convent of San Francisco.

He is the son of an old military leader that fought for our independence, and came from the Isonic State of Guerrero. José Bandera when twelve years of age already knew Latin, and in January 1850 he received the title of physician and surgeon. About that time minister Zarco appointed him as assistant in the insane asylums. Owing to his father's illness he had to leave the capital and go to live at Pachuca. There he practised his profession during a period of seven years, performed the duties of prison physician, and zealously contributed to establish the hospital in the old convent of San Francisco.