

GILDARDO GOMEZ

Gobernador del Estado de Colima — Gobernador de Jalisco — Gobernador del Estado de México

Gildardo Gomez nació en Ciudad Guzman, Estado de Jalisco, en Junio de 1851; su padre era un modesto artesano en Colima, en Jalisco. Su madre era de la familia de los Gomez, que en aquel tiempo era una familia de artesanos en Colima. Su padre era un modesto artesano en Colima, en Jalisco. Su madre era de la familia de los Gomez, que en aquel tiempo era una familia de artesanos en Colima.

Gildardo Gomez was born in Ciudad Guzman, State of Jalisco, in the month of June 1851 and was modestly educated in his father's workshop. His mother was of the family of the aristocracy, nor did the misfortune of fortune reach his younger years. On the contrary, he was born in the midst of a family of humble station, was raised among the people, endured the sufferings of his caste and though having a stout heart and a soul full of noble sentiments, he spent the best days of his youth in the obscurity of a workshop; but his talent as was natural to suppose, could not remain hidden: his high moral and intellectual qualities were recognized and soon the modest artisan became a member of the municipal council, then he was named Public Prosecutor and then occupied by the Government of Colima. In all these positions he made known his high financial qualities and his honesty, uprightness, compliance with the law and an assiduity in the fulfillment of his duties which never ceased. Gomez was the first of the employes that went to the office and the last to leave. He was a strict observer of our modern principles of political economy, was always attentive and laborious, he knew how to harmonize the proper organization of his labors with his various duties, so that he never made anybody wait in any public business. He thought that as an employe his first duty was to the public and furthermore he never made people remain in a waiting room; it was always easy to speak to him, and he ever received all the rich as well as the poor with affable and kind words.

Gildardo Gomez was born in Ciudad Guzman, State of Jalisco, in the month of June 1851 and was modestly educated in his father's workshop. His mother was of the family of the aristocracy, nor did the misfortune of fortune reach his younger years. On the contrary, he was born in the midst of a family of humble station, was raised among the people, endured the sufferings of his caste and though having a stout heart and a soul full of noble sentiments, he spent the best days of his youth in the obscurity of a workshop; but his talent as was natural to suppose, could not remain hidden: his high moral and intellectual qualities were recognized and soon the modest artisan became a member of the municipal council, then he was named Public Prosecutor and then occupied by the Government of Colima. In all these positions he made known his high financial qualities and his honesty, uprightness, compliance with the law and an assiduity in the fulfillment of his duties which never ceased. Gomez was the first of the employes that went to the office and the last to leave. He was a strict observer of our modern principles of political economy, was always attentive and laborious, he knew how to harmonize the proper organization of his labors with his various duties, so that he never made anybody wait in any public business. He thought that as an employe his first duty was to the public and furthermore he never made people remain in a waiting room; it was always easy to speak to him, and he ever received all the rich as well as the poor with affable and kind words.

Gildardo Gomez was born in Ciudad Guzman, State of Jalisco, in the month of June 1851 and was modestly educated in his father's workshop. His mother was of the family of the aristocracy, nor did the misfortune of fortune reach his younger years. On the contrary, he was born in the midst of a family of humble station, was raised among the people, endured the sufferings of his caste and though having a stout heart and a soul full of noble sentiments, he spent the best days of his youth in the obscurity of a workshop; but his talent as was natural to suppose, could not remain hidden: his high moral and intellectual qualities were recognized and soon the modest artisan became a member of the municipal council, then he was named Public Prosecutor and then occupied by the Government of Colima. In all these positions he made known his high financial qualities and his honesty, uprightness, compliance with the law and an assiduity in the fulfillment of his duties which never ceased. Gomez was the first of the employes that went to the office and the last to leave. He was a strict observer of our modern principles of political economy, was always attentive and laborious, he knew how to harmonize the proper organization of his labors with his various duties, so that he never made anybody wait in any public business. He thought that as an employe his first duty was to the public and furthermore he never made people remain in a waiting room; it was always easy to speak to him, and he ever received all the rich as well as the poor with affable and kind words.

Gildardo Gomez