

CONTENTS.

---

CHAPTER I.

	PAGE
In which Percy Wynn bows to Thomas Playfair and the reader simultaneously, . . . . .	9

CHAPTER II.

In which Percy is cross-examined by Thomas Playfair, and makes some new friends, . . . . .	24
--	----

CHAPTER III.

In which Percy has a strange midnight adventure, . . . .	27
--	----

CHAPTER IV.

In which Peters and Percy hold a very odd conversation, . . . .	42
---	----

CHAPTER V.

In which Percy goes a-fishing, . . . . .	49
--	----

CHAPTER VI.

In which Percy takes his first lessons in swimming and rowing, . . . . .	63
--	----

CHAPTER VII.

In which Percy, making way for the heavy villains of our story, does not appear, . . . . .	70
--	----

CHAPTER VIII.

In which Percy makes a desperate resolve, . . . . .	85
---	----

CHAPTER IX.

	PAGE
In which Percy makes a brave fight against discouragements, . . . . .	92

CHAPTER X.

In which Percy rescues Tom and Harry; Tom and Harry rescue Percy; and a third party rescues the trio, . . .	98
---	----

CHAPTER XI.

In which Mr. Middleton finds his lost sheep, both white and black, . . . . .	105
--	-----

CHAPTER XII.

In which Mr. Middleton makes a discovery, and passes a restless night, . . . . .	114
--	-----

CHAPTER XIII.

In which are set down the strange adventures of a runaway, . . .	124
--	-----

CHAPTER XIV.

In which Percy finds himself on the sick-list, . . . . .	137
--	-----

CHAPTER XV.

"From grave to gay." A serious conversation, followed by a game of foot-ball, . . . . .	147
---	-----

CHAPTER XVI.

In which Mr. Middleton reads a story, and excites much interest, . . . . .	160
--	-----

CHAPTER XVII.

In which Percy falls foul of the village youth, and is compelled to "run the gauntlet," . . . . .	168
---	-----

CHAPTER XVIII.

In which some of our friends find it necessary to fight—also to run, . . . . .	178
--	-----

CHAPTER XIX.

	PAGE
Beginning of the Christmas holidays. Percy is called to the parlor, . . . . .	188

CHAPTER XX.

Introduces an extraordinary new-comer to Percy and the reader, . . . . .	194
--	-----

CHAPTER XXI.

In which Frank asks a great many people a great many questions; teaches Percy how to "strike out," and makes a Christmas speech before breakfast, . . . . .	206
---	-----

CHAPTER XXII.

A Merry Christmas to all, . . . . .	217
-------------------------------------	-----

CHAPTER XXIII.

An adventure on the railroad-track, . . . . .	225
---	-----

CHAPTER XXIV.

In which Tom meets two young gentlemen whom he is not at all anxious to see, . . . . .	238
--	-----

CHAPTER XXV.

"Farewell. Parting is such sweet sorrow!"— Shakespeare , . . .	246
---	-----