

Revolution, French, vi. 463-495; 499, 500; 502-504; 511-523; 528, 529; 531-559; 567-570; 577, 589; vii. 30; 31, 32; 41-48; 57-61; 63-74; 84-87; 90-98; 130-137; 139-143; 146-150; 161; 162-168.
 Revolution, French, of 1830. See Charles X., viii. 45-53.
 Revolution, French, narrative of the, of 1848, viii. 418-422; 425, 426.
 Reynolds, sir Joshua, a leading portrait painter, vi. 366; first president of the royal academy; knighted, 371; contributes to the royal academy's first exhibition, 371; critique on his works; the true founder of the English school of painting, 37; died in 1792, vii. 543.
 Ricci, Lorenzo, chief of the Jesuits; opposes the suppression of the company, vi. 145.
 Ricci, Sebastian, a ceiling painter, v. 349.
 Ricci, Marco, a ceiling painter, v. 349.
 Richard of Cirencester, record by, of "a profound peace," from A.D. 211-286, i. 43; list of cities in Roman Britain given by, 51.
 Richard I., behaviour of, on the death of his father, i. 339; crowned Sept. 3, 1189, 340; massacre of the Jews at the coronation of, 340; engages in the third crusade, 341; mistaken sympathy for the character of, 341; quarrels with Philip of France and marries Berengaria of Navarre, 343; conquers Cyprus, 343; besieges Acre, 343; which surrenders, 345; Philip hostages, because the Holy Cross had not been delivered, 346; marches towards Jerusalem, 346; defeats Saladin in 1191, 347; is forced to retreat after reaching Jaffa, 348; hears of dis- turbances in England occasioned by the intrigues of his brother John, 348; Longchamp his chancellor in England deposed, 349; Richard is falsely accused of the murder of the Marquis of Montferrat, 351; last Eastern campaign of, 352; approaches Jerusalem, but again retreats, 353; attempts in vain to retake Jaffa, agrees to a truce, and sails from Acre on Oct. 9, 1192, 354; is captured on his return, and imprisoned by the emperor of Germany, 354; is ransomed, 355; his return, and pardons John, 355; drives Philip out of Normandy, 355; besieges fleur, and pardons John, 355; drives Philip out of Normandy, 355; besieges Chatuz, is wounded, and dies April 6, 1199, 355, 366.
 Richard II., coronation of, on July 16, 1377, i. 547; appointment by parliament of a council of regency, 547; ill success of his foreign wars, and increase of taxation, 549; insurrection against the poll-tax, headed by Wat Tyler, in 1381, 550; the demands of the insurgents granted by, at Mile End, 551; Wat Tyler killed in Smithfield during a parley with the king, who then heads the insurgents him- self, and at length dismisses them to their homes, 552; the grants revoked, 552; proposes to abolish slavery, but parliament refuses, 553; statute against the preachers of heresies, 553; contest with the pope as to the bestowal of benefices, 556; is supported in it by the parliament, 557; rise of the Lollards, 557; unnecessary and oppressive interference of the government of, in social affairs, 562-565; marries Anne of Bohemia, 566; intrigues of his uncles and ministers, 568; war with France to support the Flemings in 1383, and truce in 1384, 568; becomes suspicious of the duke of Lancaster, 568, 569; invades and ravages Scotland, 569; rise of Michael de la Pole, 569; projected invasion by the French, and destruction of the French and Flemish fleets, 570; extravagance of, and appointment of a commission of regency, 571; impeachment and dis- missal of De la Pole, earl of Suffolk, 572; tampers with the judges, and obtains an opinion that the commission is illegal, 572; goes to London, the Lords as- semble in arms, and defeat his adherents, 573; for about a year the govern- ment in the hands of a parliamentary council, 57; battle of Otterbourne fought in 1388, 573; dismisses his guardians and assumes the government in 1389, 574; his queen, Anne, dies, 574; goes to Ireland in 1394 with a large army, 574; marries Isabella of France, 575; parliament repeals the commission of re- gency, and the king becomes despotic, 577; duke of Gloucester arrested and murdered, 578; submission of the barons, 578; quarrel of the duke of Here- ford with the duke of Norfolk, 580; he banishes them both, 581; seizes the pos- session of the duke of Lancaster on his death in 1398, 581; goes to Ireland with an army, but has little success, 583; learns that Henry of Lancaster has landed in England, and returns to Conway, 584; is captured by the earl of Northumberland, 584; carried to London, 585; is deposed, and resigns his roy- alty, crown, and heritage, 586; is imprisoned in the Tower, 587; death of, at Pontefract, in 1400, 590; Henry IV., accused of being his murderer, 593; doubts as to the death of, and statement of his escape from Pontefract, and death of, at Stirling, in 1419, 594.
 Richard III., created duke of Gloucester in 1461, ii. 125; flies with Edward to the duke of Burgundy on the restoration of Henry VI., 139; lands with Edward at Ravenspur, 139; successfully attacks Warwick at the battle of Barnet, 142; distinguishes himself at the battle of Tewkesbury, 143; different accounts of the personal appearance of, 144; accused of the murder of prince Edward, 144; suppresses the insurrection of Falconbridge, 145; doubts as to his guilt of the murder of Henry VI., 146; quarrels with Clarence, 150; marries Anne, daugh- ter of the earl of Warwick, and widow of prince Edward, 150; popularity of, in the North, 151; opposes the treaty of Picquiny, 152; no foundation for the statement of his causing Clarence's death, 154; takes Berwick, 155; swears fealty to Edward V., 156; arrests earl Rivers and the members of Edward's council, 157; is appointed Protector, 158; accuses Hastings of treason, and causes him to be executed, 161, 162; proclaims his life in danger, 162; accuses Jane Shore of sorcery and conspiracy, 163, 164; Shaw preaches in favour of his claim to the crown, 165; and the duke of Buckingham harangues the citizens on the same subject, 165; parliament assign him the crown on the ground of the illegitimacy of Edward V., 166; causes earl Rivers and others of Edward's council to be beheaded, 167; he is crowned at Westminster, July, 6, 1483, 168; death of the two princes in the Tower, 168; evidence as to their murder con- sidered, 168-170; ready submission of the people to, and its causes, 174; mixed character of Richard, 174; acts of clemency and restitution by, 175; revolt of Buckingham, 175; which is suppressed, and Buckingham executed, in 1483, 179; merits of Richard as a legislator, 180; salutary laws passed by the parlia- ment of, 180; causes the statutes to be first printed, and in English, 182; en- courages printing and the importation of books, 182; death of his son, 183; negotiates with the duke of Brittany, for the delivery of Henry of Richmond, 183; death of Anne, his queen, 184; publicly disavows any intention of mar- rying Elizabeth, his brother Edward's daughter, 184; mistaken estimate by Henry of Richmond, as an adversary, 184; insufficient precautions against treason taken by, 185; Richmond lands at Milford Haven, 186; inadequate preparations to resist, 187; battle of Bosworth, Aug. 22, 1485, 188; his death, 189. Richard, Samuel, his novel of "Pamela," published 1740, 1741; its extraordi- nary popularity, vi. 388; his "Clarissa" appears 1748; and "Sir C. Grandison" in 1751, 388.

 Richborough, Roman colony at, i. 49; notice of the ruins of, 51.
 Richelieu, due de, advises that a battery be directed on the duke of Cumber- land's column, at Fontenoy, 1745, which is forced to retreat, v. 495; drives the duke of Cumberland out of Hanover, 1757; convention of Closter Seven, vi. 36. Richard, duke of, secretary of state, 1766, vi. 140; moves for Penn's examination, a bill for extending the right of vote, and other parliamentary reforms, 230. Right of search, disputes between England and America on the, vii. 325, 364.
 Riots, the Portents, of Edinburgh, 1736, v. 454-459; the Wilkite, London, 1768, 104, 105; and 1771, 136, 137; the Gordon, 1780, 228, 233; the Birmingham, 1791, 507, 508; in London, 1795, vii. 61; throughout the country, 1800-1801, 145, 146; on the occa- sion of Burdett's commitment to the tower, 1810, 305; in 1812, 324; in 1816, 431 433; the reform, in the city, 1816, 454, 455; at Queen Caroline's funeral proces- sion, 1820, 572; in 1826, 605; the Bristol, 1831, viii. 91-95; raised by John Thom amongst the Canterbury fanatics, 239-247; the Chartist, of 1839, 253; the Frost insurrection at Newport, 253, 254; rioting in 1842, 345, 346; the Rebecca riots in Wales, 353-355.
 Ripon. See Goderich.
 Ripperda, due de, sent on a secret mission to Vienna, to negotiate a treaty, v. 425; disgraced; sent to prison; reveals the secret articles of the treaty of Vienna, 426.
 Rivers, earl, patronage of printing by, ii. 148; appointed of the council of Ed- ward V., 155; arrested with the other members of the council by order of Gloucester, 157; beheaded, 157; poetic composition by, 167.
 Rivoli, battle of, Jan. 14, 1797, vii. 85, 86.
 Roads, British and Roman, different character of, i. 21, 23.
 Robert succeeds William the Conqueror, as duke of Normandy, i. 246; state of Normandy under, 250; denounces his brother William as perjured, and pre- pares for war, 252; mortgages his dukedom in 1096 to William, 252; becomes one of the leaders of the Crusade, 253; returns to Europe, and marries, 262; invades England, but is reconciled to his brother Henry, to whom he cedes his claims to the crown of England, 261; rebellion of Robert de Belesme against, who is however pardoned and restored to his estates, 266; disaffection of the Norman barons against, fostered by Henry, 266; is attacked by Henry and taken prisoner, at the battle of Tenchebrai in 1105, 269; dies a prisoner in 1135, 269.
 Robert, earl of Gloucester, becomes an adherent of Matilda against Stephen, i. 280; encourages the people of Bristol in their attacks on Stephen's partisans, 280; maintains possession of Bristol and Leeds, 282; lands in England with Matilda in 1139, 288; wins the battle of Lincoln and takes Stephen prisoner, 290, 291; captured at Winchester, and exchanged for Stephen, 294; character of, 294; death of, in 1147, 298.

Robertson, a smuggler, condemned to death for robbing an excise collector, but escapes, v. 456.

Robespierre, Augustin, commissioned by the French convention to punish the Toulonese, vii. 25; death scene of, July, 1794, 45, 46.

Robespierre, M. S., leader of the Jacobins; mover of the self-denying ordinance of the national assembly, vi. 518; his hatred of Marat, 596; rouses the mob against the Girondins, 596; maintains the system of terror, vii. 44; officiates at the festival of the Supreme Being, 45; his speech in the hall of the Convention, 45; his arrest; attempts to commit suicide; is guillotined, July 28, 1794, 46; uncertainty as to what was his real character, 46.

Robin Hood, first mention of, i. 359; as to the reality of, 359, 360; the representative of resistance to aristocratic tyranny, 360; detestation of oppression, and poetical excellence shown in the Robin Hood ballads, 161; theory of the adventures connected with, being founded on those of the defeated adherents of Simon de Montfort, 417.

Rochambeau, comte de, commands the French armament sent to reinforce the Americans, 1780, vi. 236; present at Cornwallis's surrender, 253; a commander in the French army sent against Austria, 1712, 552.

Rochefort, failure of the British expedition against, 1757, vi. 35.

Rochejaquelein, Henri de la, a Vendean leader, vii. 28; obtains the chief command of their army, 29; death of, 1793, 29.

Rochester, earl of, lord lieutenant of Ireland, v. 94, 113; supports the motion for inviting Sophia of Hanover to England, 169.

Rockingham, Charles Wentworth, marquess of, named first lord of the treasury, 1765, vi. 89, 140; difficulty of his position arising from the disturbances in America, 90; weakness of his administration, 97; again becomes first lord of the treasury, 1782; the king's aversion to, composition of his ministry, 262; notices the power of revenue officers at elections, 269; died July 1, 1782, 280; his success as a cultivator, 325.

Rodney, admiral sir George, destroys the gun-boats in Havre, vi. 44; commands the fleet sent against Martinique, 66; his victory over the Spaniards off Cape St. Vincent, Jan. 16, 1780, 234; captures St. Eustatius, Feb. 1781, 243; defends St. Vincent against certain charges, 245; arrives at the Barbadoes, Feb. 19, 1782; effects a junction with Hood's squadron, 263; chases de Grasse; gives him a signal defeat, April 12; first employs the manoeuvre of "breaking the line," 264; question whether he was entitled to the merit of the idea, discussed, 264; capture of the Ville de Paris, 265; and other French vessels, 266.

Roebuck, Dr., originator of modern improvements in manufacturing iron, and founder of the Carron iron works, vi. 354; becomes embarrassed, 355; refuses to allow Boulton a share in Watt's patent, 361; ultimately agrees to sell his share to Boulton, 362.

Rogers, Samuel, his "Jacqueline" published 1814, and "Italy," 1822, vii. 509.

Rohilla war, 1774, vi. 428.

Roland, appointed minister of the interior, 1792, vi. 531; his wife; her enthusiastic republicanism, 532; his dismissal, 534; resumes office, 540; execution of his wife, 1793, vii. 27.

Roliça, battle of, Aug. 17, 1808, vii. 273.

Roman dominion in Britain, civilizing effects of, i. 46, et seq.; roads in Britain, notice of, 46; policy in employing natives in their armies, 49; the army an instrument of civilization, 49; fortresses in Britain, notice of, 49; colonies in Britain, list of, 50; ancient remains of, 50; cities of, 51; administration in Britain, 56; municipal establishments of, 56; customs, existing remains of, 61; municipalities, rise of separate sovereignties in Britain, from, 73.

Romans, progress of the conquests of, in Britain, i. 31; encouraged the settlement of foreigners in Britain, 56; municipal institutions established by the, 57; British iron manufacturing, tin and lead mining by the, iv. 395, 396.

Rome, intercourse of Britain with, i. 26; taken by the Goths, 69; occupied and spoliated by the French, 1758, vii. 96; annexed to France, 1811, 314.

Romilly, sir Samuel, present at a dinner with Wilkes and Mirabeau; Wilkes defends the severity of the criminal law, vi. 419; rejoices at the occurrence of the French revolution, 493; remarks of, on the September massacres, 1792, 545; describes the various parties in 1794, vii. 37; remarks on the bread riots, 1800, 1801, 145; description of French despotism, 1802, 474; praises Pitt's speech, 1803, 183; solicitor-general, 229; sums up the evidence for Melville's impeachment, 1806, 230; engaged in the inquiry into the princess of Wales's conduct, 230; eloquent speech on the abolition of the slave trade, 246; remark of, on Mrs. Clarke's interference in military promotions, 281, 282; his eulogy on Mr. Perceval, 321; his remarks on Brougham's speech against the regent, 425; one of the leaders in bringing about an amelioration of the nation's social condition, 435; his efforts in reforming the criminal laws lead to the abolition of capital punishment for several cases or kinds of thefts, 436-438; returned M. P. for Westminster; death of his wife a proximate cause of suicide, Nov. 2, 1818, 480.

Rooke, sir George, present at the battle of La Hogue, iv. 561; drives Tourville out of his shelter in the bay of La Hogue, destroying nearly all the French ships, 563; defeated at the battle of St. Vincent, and loses a large number of the fleet sent against Cadiz, 1702, 115; fails in taking it, but captures some Spanish galleons, 116; commands the expeditionary fleet against Catalonia, 1704, v. 151; lands at Barcelona, but re-embarks, and effects a junction with the French fleet, of Gibraltar, Aug. 2, 152; fights a drawn battle with the Rosbach, battle of, Nov. 5, 1757, vi. 37.

Rose, Geo. George, secretary of the treasury; does not acquiesce in Pitt's bill for reform, vi. 451, 452; account of the national assembly's conduct by, 1791, 513; urges Pitt to include Fox and Grenville and their friends in his administration, vii. 191; introduces a bill for regulating savings' banks, 1816, 445.

Rosen supersedes Hamilton as commander of the forces besieging Londonderry, iv. 473; his inhuman conduct, 480; he fails in taking the place; raises the siege, Aug. 1, 1689, 483.

Ross, gen. himself and adm. Cockburn incite the slaves of America to rebellion, 1814, vii. 376; defeat the Americans and burns several buildings in Washington, 376-378; mortally wounded in battle, Sept. 11, 1814, 379.

Roubillac, L. F., his sculptures, v. 345.

Royal Society incorporated by charter in 1662, iv. 454.

Rubens, his paintings; employed by Charles I., v. 348.

Rupert, prince, appointed to the command of the horse in the royal army at the parliamentary force, 457; first encounter between his cavalry and the battle of Edgehill, 458, 459; gains the battle at Brentford, 463; and that of Chalgrove Field, 472; takes Bristol, 477; relieves Lathom House, 493; possesses Chester, 491; is defeated at the battle of Marston Moor, 494; retreats to tol, 508, 509; is dismissed from his command by Charles I., 508; meeting of with Charles at Newark, and final parting, 515; appears in St. George's channel with a formidable fleet, 237; admiral Blake interrupts the operations of, 602; takes refuge in Kinsale, 602; compelled to leave the Irish coast, 602; takes of Portugal, and is followed to the Tagus by Blake, iv. 17; escapes to Spain, 17; appointed to the command of the fleet against the Dutch in 1666, with Monk, 174; is suspected of not having aided Monk with sufficient promptitude in his battle with the Dutch fleet, 175; assists in ravaging the Dutch coasts, 178; is appointed to the command of the fleet on the resignation of the duke of York, in 1673, 222.

Rush, Richard, the United States plenipotentiary in London; his description of queen Charlotte, vii. 480, 481; his despatch to Monroe on Canning's letter to himself, 588; his discussions with Londonderry and Canning, 588, 589.

Russell, admiral Edward, allows himself to be tampered with by James II., but is disgusted at that king's declaration, iv. 561; commands the English fleet at the naval victory of La Hogue, 562; removed from the command of the fleet, 1693, 577; restored again shortly after, 587; appointed to look after Tourville in 1694, 591; implicated by Fenwick with having held treasonous correspondence with James II., v. 37; created earl of Orford, 1697, 38; impeached for Anne's succession, 113.

Russell, lord John, takes up the cause of parliamentary reform, 1819; obtains the disfranchisement of Grampond vii. 485; proposes a partial repeal of the corporation and test acts, so as to admit dissenters to public offices; his measure adopted in a compromised form, viii. 23, 24; paymaster of the forces, 67; the government reform bill introduced by him; his speech explanatory of its purpose, 1831, 71, 72; moves the second reading of the bill, 77; it having been thrown out he again brings it forward in the new parliament, 80; carries it in the House of Lords, 83; re-introduces it into the Commons, Dec. 12, 1831, 99; his resolution on the surplus funds of the Irish church, 1835, 174; its adoption by the Commons leads to the resignation of the Peel ministry, 174; his municipal corporation reform bill, 178, et seq.; his measure for commuting tithes, 188; brings forward bills for a general registration and for commuting the marriage of dissenters, 192; his bills for introducing poor law into Ireland, and amending the criminal law, 1836, 198; eulogises William IV., 199; home secretary, 203; government adopts his resolutions condemnatory of the conduct of the Canadian legislature, 232; his bill for inquiring into and redressing the Canadian grievances, 234; grants the release of Thom, 241; condemned for his leniency towards Frost, 253; proposes a fixed duty on the importation

- of corn, 271, 272; advocates the principle of a free trade in corn, 272, 273; his speech on the address, 275; his letter to the city of London, electors advocating a repeal of the corn laws, 388; the premiership offered him by the queen, 390; which he accepts; but is unable to form a government, 391; first lord of the treasury, July, 1846, 400; his financial statement; apprehends a large expenditure; his plans for meeting it, 417, 418.
- Russell, lord Wm., moves a resolution in the House of Commons to take into consideration how to suppress popery and prevent a popish succession, iv. 266; carries up the Exclusion bill to the House of Lords, 267; accused of a participation in the Rye House plot in 1683, 284; is arrested and brought to trial on July 13, 285; noble behaviour of his wife, 287; is convicted, and beheaded on July 21, 288.
- Ryder, Richard, his bill for punishing stocking or lace frame destroyers passed, 1812, vii. 324; home secretary, 1809-1812, 640.
- Rysbrack, J. M., his sculptures, v. 345.
- Ryswick, treaty of, concluded, Sept. 22, 1697, v. 40, 264.
- Ryland, his house burnt down by the Birmingham rioters, 1791, vi. 509.
- S.
- SACHEVEREL, Dr., enraged at Defoe for his pamphlet on the dissenters, v. 119; preaches before the lord mayor, Nov. 5, 1709, 216; he is ordered to attend at the bar of the House of Commons, and is impeached, 218; proceedings of parliament against, 219; the articles of impeachment, 220, 221; popular manifestations in favour of, 223; the parliament sentences him to three years' suspension from preaching, and his sermons to be burnt, 225; this lenient sentence is celebrated as a triumph by the high church party, 226; his ovation and progress through the country, 231-234; characteristic description of him, as given by the duchess of Marlborough, 231-234; preaches before the Commons on the thanksgiving day for peace, July 7, 1713, 275.
- Safety Lamp. See Davy; Stephenson.
- St. Alban's, first battle of, on May 22, 1455, ii. 112; Warwick defeated by Margaret in the second battle of, in 1461, 120.
- St. Aubyn, sir John, remonstrates against the king's preferring Hanoverian to English interests, v. 489.
- St. Bartholomew's, massacre of, iii. 96, 97.
- St. Christopher's given to Great Britain, 1714, v. 273; taken by the French, 1782, vi. 260-263; restored to Britain, 1783, 290.
- St. Domingo, French expedition to; resistance opposed by Toussaint, vii. 175, 176.
- St. Eustatius, capture of, by Rodney, 1781; the king surrenders his interest in it to the army and navy, vi. 244; retaken by the French, 260.
- St. Germain, count de, French secretary at war; interview with Steuben, vi. 198.
- St. Jean d'Acre, bombardment and capture of, 1840, viii. 268.
- St. John, viscount Bolingbroke; he is taken into Marlborough's confidence, v. 133; resigns his place in the ministry, 1707, 201; his connection with Swift and the party press, 244; envies Harley for being stabbed; insinuates that the blow was intended for himself; has a misunderstanding with Harley on this point of honour, 247, 248; congratulates Marlborough on his successes, 1714, 251; secretly negotiates with France for peace, 252; his letter to Ormond, 267; double-dealing of, 268; created viscount Bolingbroke, 1712, but is dissatisfied at not having received an earldom; is despatched on an embassy to the French court; he secures the interest of the duke of Savoy, 272, 273; obtains private interviews with the chevalier St. George, 273; Louis XIV. presents him with a ring 4000*l.* in value, 273; urges the chevalier to turn Protestant; introduces his Schism bill, 275; quarrels with Oxford, and gains the mastery over him, obtaining the supremacy in the ministry, 277; is disappointed at George I. being proclaimed king, 360; loses his secretary of state, 363; escapes to France; becomes the Pretender's secretary of state; is impeached by Walpole, June 9, 364; meets the Pretender at Paris, 386; is dismissed from his service, 386; obtains leave to return to England; obtains an interview with his sovereign, 1727, 427; actively opposes Walpole, 1734, 448; his character described by Walpole, 450, 451; he quits England, 451.
- St. Julien, admiral, his contest with the British at Toulon, 1793, vii. 19, 20.
- St. Just, cruelty of, vii. 45; decreed and led to the guillotine, 1794, 46.
- St. Lucia taken by the British, 1762, vi. 66; again, 1778, 213; ceded to the French, 1783, 290.
- St. Pancras church, solecism and unadaptability of its design, vii. 530, 531; designed by the Inwoods; its cost, 537.
- St. Paul's Cathedral, burning of the steeple of, in 1561, iii. 41; opening of Wren's new building, Dec. 2, 1697, v. 41; proposals to repair the old edifice; it is burnt down, 1666, 334, 335; Wren's first design for a new cathedral, 336, 337; first stone laid, 1675; the last, 1710, 337; criticism on, 337.

- St. Petersburg founded by Peter the Great, 1703, v. 214.
- St. Philip, Byng neglects to try the relief of, vi. 15; it surrenders to French arms, June 27, 1756, 16.
- Saint Luth, commander-in-chief of James II.'s Irish army, iv. 535; defeated by the English under Ginkell at Aghrim, July 12, 1691, 535.
- St. Sebastian captured by the French, 1719, v. 403; taken by the British under general Graham, 1813, vii. 351.
- St. Vincent taken by the British, 1762, vi. 66; regained 1783, 290.
- St. Vincent, battle of, Feb. 14, 1797, vii. 77, 78.
- St. Vincent, earl. See Jervis.
- Saladin, extent of the power of, i. 337; takes Jerusalem, 338; fails to relieve Acre, 345; neglecting to restore the Holy Cross, 345; the hostages at Acre are massacred, 346; beheads the Christian captives in retaliation for Richard's massacre of the hostages, 346; defeated by Richard in 1191, 347; compels Richard to retreat to Acre, but interchanges courtesies with him, 348; compels Richard to agree to a truce with Richard for three years in 1192, and dies in 1193, 354.
- Salamanca, or Arapiles, battle of, July 22, 1812, vii. 335, 336.
- Salt, sir Robert, general, leaves Cabul, viii. 291; harassed by the enemy, 292, 293; takes Jellalabad, 296; his heroic defence of the place, 297, et seq.; marches to the relief of Cabul, 299; mortally wounded at battle of Perozesah, 1845, 404.
- Salt, first bed of rock salt discovered in Cheshire in 1670, iv. 407; heavy duties levied upon; abolished in 1823, 408; consumption, of in 1839, 408; duty on, remanure, vi. 325.
- Sancroft, William, archbishop; refuses to take the oath of allegiance to William III., iv. 463; absent at the coronation of William III., 473; deprived of his archbishopric, 1691, 531.
- Sanctuary, enormous abuse of, temp. Henry VII., ii. 231.
- Sanderson, sir Thomas, raises a war-cry against Spain, 1739, v. 472, 473.
- San Domingo, trade of, 1789; slave revolt in, 1791, vi. 577.
- Sandwich, lord, sent to watch over the duke of Cumberland, v. 569; secretary of state, 1763, vi. 75; he resolves to prosecute Wilkes; sets spies on Wilkes's movements and steals his papers; complains of him in Parliament, 79; secretary of state, 1763-1765, 140; aids in cross-examining Penn on the feeling of America towards England, 181; replies to Chatham's proposed amendment on the address, 1777, 202.
- Sandys, moves for Walpole's dismissal from the king's councils, 1741, v. 481; his motion rejected, 482.
- San Mateo besieged by count of Las Torres; relieved by Peterborough, v. 158.
- Saratoga, convention of, signed Oct. 17, 1777, vi. 201.
- Sardinia taken by admiral sir J. Leake, 1708, v. 207.
- Sarsfield, general, commander of the garrison at Limerick; makes a sortie during the siege of 1690 upon the guns and stores of William's army, destroying or rendering them useless, iv. 521; inactive part taken by, at the battle of Aghrim, July, 1691, 535.
- Sarum, town and hill-fort in the time of the Roman dominion, i. 25.
- Saunders, admiral, supersedes West in his command, 1756, vi. 16; conveys Wolfe and his army to Quebec, 45.
- Savannah taken by the British, vi. 220.
- Savery, Thomas, steam-engine invented by, iv. 416.
- Savile, sir George, M. P. for Yorkshire; presents the county petition for redress of grievances, 1780, vi. 222; moves for a list of crown places, 225; his house gutted by the Gordon rioters, 230.
- Savings banks, establishment of, at Tottenham in 1798 and 1804; at Bath in 1808; at Ruthwell in 1810; and in London 1816, vii. 445, 446.
- Savoie annexed to France, 1792, vi. 552; restored to Piedmont, vii. 411.
- Saxe, marshal, appointed to command the troops for the projected invasion of England, 1743; that expedition failing he takes the command of an army in the Low Countries, v. 490; commands the French at Fontenoy, 1745, 494; persuades Louis XIV. to retire from the battle, 495; gains the victory over the allies at Lanfeld, July 2, 1747, 568, 569.
- Saxe Gotha, princess of. See Frederick of Wales, v. 461, 463; 580, 581.
- Saxon shore, "Litus Saxonicum," opinions of Dr. Lappenberg, Sir F. Palgrave, and Mr. Kemble as to its meaning; a settlement of Saxons, i. 55.
- Saxon invasion of Britain, obscurity of the events of, i. 74; rapid succession of seats of, 78; heathendom, account of, 81; period, close of; 209; influence of, on the national character, 209.
- Saxons, probable settlement of large numbers of, in England, before the Saxon invasion, i. 56, 59; principle of personal freedom probably derived from, 58; obscure interval between their supremacy in Britain, and that of the Romans, i. 69.

Schellenberg, or Donawert, battle of the, July 2, 1704, v. 137.
 Schism bill, passed 1744, v. 277; Stanhope desires the repeal of the, 401.
 Schomberg, mar. hal, lands in Ireland with an army, Aug. 13, 1689, iv. 483; unable to do anything from the neglected condition of the army, which suffered from want of clothes, medicine, and even necessaries, 501; reinforced, 507; leads the centre at the battle of the Boyne, 510; rallies the retreating Protestants and is slain, July 1, 1690, 510.
 Sciences, sketch of the state of the, temp. William and Anne, iv. 454, 455; knowledge of the, spread and increased by the Jesuits, vi. 146; scientific labours and discoveries of Herschell, Davy, Dalton, Wollaston, and Jenner, vii. 520, 521; scientific writers in 1842, 327, 338.
 Scinde, conquest and wise administration of, by sir C. J. Napier, 1843, viii. 356-361.
 Scindia wars with Holkar; then allies with him against the British, vii. 219, 220; defeated at Assye by Wellington, 222, et seq.; and again Nov. 29, 1803; signs a treaty with the British, Dec. 30, 225; joins the Mahratta confederacy against the British, 625; agrees to aid the British against the Pindares; his faithlessness, 626.
 Scott, sir Walter, prejudices of, against the union, v. 183; his verse romances; and the publication of "The Lay of the Last Minstrel," 1805; "Marmion," 1808; and the "Minstrelsy of the Scottish Border," vii. 507; two critiques, 507; his immense popularity, 508; failure of his dramas, 514; high success of his Waverley novels, 516, 517; his commercial failure an example of the danger of drawing upon future wealth, 603, 604; his honorable efforts to discharge his obligations, 604; urges the Scotch to treat Charles X. respectfully, viii. 53; benefits conferred on his family by the copyright act, 305, 306.
 Sebastiana, general, his report of the practicability of France reconquering Egypt, vii. 177; the French ambassador at Constantinople; his offers to sultan Selim; 253; joins Victor in the Peninsula, 297.
 Secular law, state of, temp. Henry II., i. 315.
 Sedgemoor, battle of, July 5, 1685, iv. 313.
 Seditious meetings bill brought in by Pitt, vii. 61; opposition to it, 61, 62; passed 1793, 62; another passed, Mar. 29, 1817, vii. 457, 458.
 Selden, John, joins in the protestation of the House of Commons, in 1621, against the king's interference with their liberty of speech, iii. 320; assists in the debate on the Petition of Right, in 1628, 336; committed to the Tower after parliament had been dissolved, in 1629, 344.
 Selwyn, major, denounces British interference in continental affairs, v. 520.
 Selwaç, original name of the spot where the battle of Hastings was fought, i. 206, et seq.
 Septennial act, debates and remarks on the; passed 1716; v. 387, 388; its repeal agitated, 448.
 Seringapatam, besieged and taken by the British, 1791, vi. 575; and again in 1799, vii. 130, 131.
 Seton, Mr., of Pitmedden, one of the commissioners for establishing the union, 1706, v. 189; his arguments in favour of the scheme, 190.
 Settlement, early establishment of the law of, iii. 197; ill effects of, and severities exercised under, 198; its severity on the poor, iv. 439, 440; vi. 308; vii. 442; slightly alleviated, 1861, 442.
 Seven years' war, history of the, vi. 18, 19; 34-44; 59-61; 65-69; 601.
 Severus, wall of, i. 41, 42; suppresses the revolt of the Brigantes and Mæatae, 43; death of, A.D. 211, 43.
 Seville, peace of, Nov. 9, 1729, v. 265, 432.
 Seymour, sir Edward, his remarks on the want of good British generals, iv. 568; his contempt of Scotland's poverty, v. 59; comptroller, 1702, 113.
 Seymour, lord Thomas, brother of Somerset, marries Catherine, widow of Henry VIII., ii. 535; quarrels with his brother, 535; addresses the princess Elizabeth after the death of his wife, 536; is accused of treason, convicted, and executed, 536; charge against of defrauding the Mint in conjunction with sir J. Sharrington, 539; letters of, to the princesses Mary and Elizabeth, 539.
 Shaftesbury, Anthony Ashley Cooper, earl of, becomes a member of the Cabal ministry in 1667, iv. 200; character of, by Butler and Dryden, 201; complicity of, in Charles becoming a pensioner of France, 203; shifting policy of, 203; is created earl of Shaftesbury, and made lord chancellor, 218; character of, 219; declares the Declaration of Indulgence illegal, 221; is dismissed from his office of chancellor, and becomes the leader of the opposition, 224; letter attributed to, descriptive of the composition of the House of Commons, 224; committed to the Tower for opinions expressed in the House of Lords, in 1677, 230; is suspected of having fomented the Popish Plot in 1678, 236; is named president of the council in 1679, and continues to lead the opposition, 237; is dismissed from the presidency, 261; presents the duke of York as a popish recusant to the Grand Jury at Westminster, 261; supports the Exclusion Bill in the House of Lords, which is rejected, 267; is indicted for high treason in 1681; and the grand jury throw out the bill, 275; he flies to Holland, 279; death of, in 1683, 279.

 Shah Alum. See Alum, Shah.
 Shah Sojah, an expelled sovereign, and pensioner of the East India Company, stored to his sovereignty, 290; complains of his position, 291; assassinated, 298; knowledge of, and taste for, disseminated by Steele, v. 232; nationality of, 232; of, 346; impulse given to Shakspearean criticism, viii. 328, 329.
 Shannon, fight between the, and the Chesapeake, June 1, 1813, vii. 372.
 Sharp, William; his engravings, viii. 156.
 Shaw, sir James; his courage in quelling the riots of 1816, vii. 454.
 Sheffield, trades of, iv. 4.4; obtains parliamentary representation, 1832, viii. 116; Shelburne, earl of, dismissed his office, and treated with coldness by the king secretary of state, 1766-1768, 98, 140; praises the king's nobleness of mind, 237; secretary of state, 1782, 262, 603; his remarks on contractors, 268; circular issued by, on the volunteer question, 271; his Irish trade motion rejected, 273; commences overtures of peace with Franklin, 279; Fox obtains a share in the negotiations; differences arise between the two; Shelburne appoints first lord of the treasury, 1782, 280; resigns his premiership, Feb. 24, 1783, 291; advocates for free trade, 291.
 Shelley, P. B.; "Queen Mab" published, 1812; drowned, 1821; high character of his poetry, vii. 509.
 Shepherd, sir Samuel, attorney-general; prosecutes Hone for libel, vii. 465, 466.
 Sheridan, R. B., elected M.P. for Stafford, vi. 242; resigns office, 1782, 280; denounces the proceedings of the National Assembly; Burke renounces him, 497; Louis XVI. 558; opposes the "Traitorous Correspondence" bill, 584; patriotically supports the mutiny bills of 1797, vii. 84; his speech on the projected French invasion of England, 1798, 95; moves an amendment to the address, 1799, 120; advocates a hearty co-operation with Spain against France, 270.
 Sheriffmuir, battle of, Nov. 14, 1715, v. 372-378.
 Shippen; his remarks on the king's speech, 1717, v. 399; sent to the Tower in consequence, 399.
 Shore, sir John. See Teignmouth, lord.
 Shovel, sir Cloudesley, joins with sir G. Rooke and the prince of Darnstadt in the capture of Gibraltar, 1704, v. 152; commands the fleet carrying troops to Barcelona, 155; commands the English and Dutch fleet employed in the attack upon France, 1707; bombards Toulon; wrecked on his return home, Oct. 22, 200; supposed to have been murdered by an old woman; description of the wreck, 201.
 Shrewsbury (or Hateley Field), battle of, July 21, 1403, when Hotspur fell, i. 600.
 Shrewsbury, duke of, negotiates with Anne as to her revenue, iv. 499; William III.'s favourite minister; resigns his secretary of stateship at the command of James II., to whom he deserts, 1690, 504; again offered the office of secretary to William's favour, 592; correspondence between William and, 1696, v. 33-35; accused of having communicated with James II., 37; the Queen appoints him lord high treasurer, 278; 360.
 Sidmouth, viscount. See Addington.
 Sidney, Algernon, opposes the trial of the king, iii. 579; is accused of participation in the Rye-House Plot, in 1683, iv. 285; his defence, and conviction, 288; is beheaded on Dec. 7, 289.
 Sidney, sir Philip, serves in the army sent to assist the Netherlands, iii. 102; death of, at Zutphen, 162; funeral of, 136.
 Sieyès, abbé, proposes that the Tiers États be called the "National Assembly," vi. 476; his plans for a constitution accepted by the people, vii. 59; a member of the French directory, 135; appointed one of the three consuls, 1799, 137.
 Sign paintings. See Painting.
 Sikh war, 1845, 1846, viii. 403-405.
 Silbury Hill, the largest artificial mound in Europe, i. 24.
 Silchester, i. 25; account of the Roman city of, i. 51, 52.
 Silk; Lombe's mill at Derby; trade of; state of manufacture, iv. 405-406; prohibition of Indian silks, 428.
 Silures, unsubdued during the reign of Claudius, i. 33.
 Simmel, Lambert, imposture of, ii. 195; represents himself as son of the duke of Clarence, 195; his pretensions supported by the duchess of Burgundy, 195; proclaimed king in Dublin, 195; lands in England with a force under Martin

- Swartz, is defeated at Stoke, on June 4, 1487, and taken prisoner, 195; appointed to a mean office in Henry's kitchen, 196.
- Sundercomb, Miles, plot of, against Cromwell, iv. 89; its failure, 89.
- Singapore, ceded to the British, vii. 627.
- Sinking fund scheme, Pitt's, vi. 462, 463.
- Siward, earl of Northumbria (the Siward of Shakespere's Macbeth), notice of, i. 189.
- Skippon, major, his speech to the Londoners, iii. 464; takes the place of Essex as commander, 496; commands the centre with Fairfax at battle of Naseby, 503; escorts the payment of money to the Scots for the surrender of Charles I., 528.
- Slave trade carried on by Bristol traders, 17th and 18th centuries, iv. 390; by the merchants of Liverpool and Lyme, 411; Assiento contract for the supply of slaves renounced by England 1750, vi. 601; debate on, 1752; parliament resolves on its abolition, 526; slaves emancipated by France, 1792, vii. 176; she desires to re-establish the trade, 176; debates on, 1806; progress of the cause of abolition; parliament resolves to abolish, 1792-234; slave trade abolition bill passed; receives the royal assent, March 25, 1807, 2-6; England and America agree to put down, 383; abolished by Bonaparte; persisted in by Portugal and Spain, 415.
- Slavery, existence of, in England under the Romans, i. 58; imposed by statute as a punishment for vagrancy in 1547, ii. 488; the statute repealed in 1549, 560.
- Slavery, colonial; Canning's resolutions for ameliorating the condition of slaves with a view to their ultimate emancipation agreed to, vii. 36, 147; slavery laws, 597; case of Mr. Smith the missionary, 597, 798; résumé of parliamentary efforts towards abolishing, viii. 139; resolutions in Mr. Stanley's bill for the abolition of, in the British colonies, 139, 140; progress of the bill through parliament 1833, 140; the first day of emancipation in America, Aug. 1, 1794, 141; Dr. Channing's address on the abolition of, 141, 142; proposition of president Lincoln in 1862 to emancipate slaves, 142; effects of the abolition, 143, 146; treaty with Brazil for abolition of, Oct. 18, 1825, 205; emancipation of the slaves in Jamaica, 249.
- Smirke, sir R., his architectural works, vi. 381, 534.
- Smith, John, a missionary, tried on a charge of inciting the Demerara negroes to revolt; sentenced to death; dies in consequence of imprisonment while in ill-health; his case brought before the British parliament, vii. 597, 598.
- Smith, sir Sidney, conducts the blowing up of the French fleet and arsenals on the evacuation of Toulon, Dec. 1793, vii. 23; defends Acre, 1799, 132, 133; commands the English fleet assisting the Turks, 1801, 161; commands a squadron at Palermo, 1806, 240.
- Smith, Sydney, desires the continuance of peace, 1823, vii. 183 "Mrs. Partington's" speech on the reform bill, 1831, viii. 88, 89; urges lord Grey to create peers to secure the passing of the reform bill, 100; describes the cruelty of not allowing counsel to prisoners, 189, 190; his idea of the queen's first duty, 225.
- Smolensk, battle before, 1812; evacuated by the Russians, vii. 40.
- Smollett, Tobias; his vivid description of the attack upon Carthage, v. 476, 477; publication of his "Roderick Random," 1748; "Peregrine Pickle," 1751; and "Ferdinand Count Fathom," 1753, vi. 389; manners of 18th century illustrated from his works, 391-393, 395, 397, 415.
- Soane, sir John, built the Bank of England, the Treasury front, and some other edifices, vii. 533, 534.
- Sobraon, battle of, Feb. 10, 1846, viii. 405.
- Social evils, temp. William and Anne, iv. 452.
- Societies for reforming manners, first adopted by the Puritans, v. 47; Society for Promoting Christian Knowledge established about 1698, 48; Society for the Propagation of the Gospel, established about 1698, 48; an older one was established in 1649, but it died out soon after the Restoration, 48; artists stimulated by the Society of Arts, vi. 365; Society of Sign Painters, and exhibition of paintings by them, 369; meetings of the London Corresponding, denouncing the French revolutionary doctrines, 563; Hampden Clubs, vii. 448, et seq.; Society of Spencean Philanthropists, 451, 452; British Institution, 542; Society of Painters in Water-colours, formed 1805, 548; Society for the Diffusion of Useful Knowledge originated by lord Brougham, 1826, viii. 20.
- Socinians, statute against, 1698, v. 45.
- Soda, manufacture of, promoted by the abolition of the tax on salt, iv. 408.
- Soda, manufacture of, promoted by the abolition of the tax on salt, iv. 408.
- Solmes, count, leads the Dutch guards at the battle of the Boyne, iv. 511; his charge on the Irish, 512, 513; commands the English at Steinkirk; his conduct at the battle blamed, 567, 568; slain, 1693, 568.
- Somers, lord, named solicitor-general, 1689, iv. 461; made lord keeper, 1693, 577; is the leader of his party, 587; promoted to the lord chancellorship, 1697; and made a peer, v. 38; sends William a blank commission for appointing

- commissioners, 75; removed from his lord chancellorship, 1700, 84; impeached in 1701 for his concern in the Partition treaties, 97; conferred with by William on the state of English politics, 14; loses his place in the privy council on the accession of queen Anne, 1702, 113; his weariness of factions, 127; his opinion on the Septennial Act; died, 1716, 338.
- Somerset House, notice of the building erected by the duke of Somerset, ii. 557.
- Somerset, Robert Carr, earl of, rapid ride of, from London to Edinburgh to assume the government of the kingdom after Cecilius's death, 234; to the divorced lady Essex, 234; trial of, with the countess, for the murder of Sir Thomas Overbury, 239, 300; deceitful conduct of the king towards, 300.
- Somersetshire, a specimen of its dialect, iv. 399; agricultural progress of, King's Sedgmoor and the Quantock hills, vi. 321; Exmoor, its black-cocks and stags, 322; forty-one persons to every 100 acres, 322.
- Sophia, princess, of Hanover; her parentage, husband, and child; description of; becomes heir to the English crown, v. 90, 91; death of, May 14, 1728, 277.
- Sopha, princess of Zell, wife of George I., from whom she was divorced and confined in Aldham Castle on account of a supposed connection with count Königsmark, v. 362; died November 13, 1726, 428.
- Soubise, prince de, encamps near Mueheln, vi. 37; defeated at Rosbach by Frederick, 37.
- Soult, marshal, serves in Jourdan's army, vii. 49; defeated by Moore at Corunna, Jan., 1809, 276; his testimony to Moore's merits, 279; takes possession of Oporto, March 29, 284; obliges Wellington to retreat, 1809, 299; defeated at the battle of Albuera, May, 1811, 318; retreats to Seville, 318; and joins forces with Marmont, 318; commands the French army in Spain, 1813, 347; fights the battle of the Pyrenees, 347; his engagement with Wellington and Hill, 352; defeated by Wellington at Orthez, Feb. 27, 1814, 355; retreats to Toulouse, where he again fights with Wellington, April 10, 355; his enthusiastic reception at the queen's coronation, viii. 237.
- South Sea Company, its proposed scheme; eagerness of the public to obtain shares, 1720, v. 407; various other contemporary schemes, 408; the company endeavours to obtain a monopoly by repressing other companies, which brings about its own downfall; the rapid sinking of the stock, 409; and final bursting of the bubble; Walpole appointed to restore the national credit, 411; the South Sea scheme compared with the Mississippi scheme of John Law, 410, 412; bribery complaints from various trades, showing their deplorable state and the universal want of money, 413; Walpole's plan for sustaining the national company; the various fates of earl Stanhope, knight, the cashier of the James Craggs, and the postmaster-general, 414; the directors' estates are confiscated, and themselves declared incapable of holding government office, 415.
- Southey, Robert, character of the ancient Britons by, i. 23; he condemns the inquisitorial character of the property tax, vii. 423; his style described by Byron, 505; his mental decay, viii. 307.
- Southwell, poor law reforms carried out at, prior to 1834, viii. 152.
- Sovereigns, Table of. See Tables.
- Spafeld's meeting of reformers and riot, 1816, vii. 453-455.
- Spence, earl. First Lord of the Admiralty, 1794, vii. 53; secretary of state for home department, 1806, 229.
- Spenser, Edmund, embodiment of early English legends, by, i. 14; characteristics of his poetry, iii. 230.
- Spenser, Hugh. See Edward II.
- Spithead, the mutiny at, 1797, vii. 80, 82.
- Stael, Madame de, her remarks on Pitt and Fox, vi. 588; her description of the first days of the consulate, vii. 148.
- Stage coaches in the 18th century; manners as connected with, vi. 393, 394.
- Stair, earl of, commands the British troops in Flanders, 1743, v. 491; cut off from his supplies; advises George II. to make some perilous adventure; his advice not being adopted, he resigns his commission, 492.
- Stamp Act passed 1711; duties imposed by it; effects produced by, v. 269; for taxing America, 1765, vi. 83, 84; opposition to it in America, 84, 85; debates and remarks on the, 84-86; further opposition in America, 90; petition of London merchants against it, 90, 93; Pitt urges its repeal, 91-93; examination of Dr. Franklin on the American temper respecting the, 91, 93.
- Standard, battle of the, i. 283.
- Stanhope, James, earl of, general, sent with reinforcements for the relief of Barcelona, 1706, v. 159; carries Fort Mahon in conjunction with admiral Leake, 1708, 207; applies the question of Sacheverel's impeachment to the high church doctrines, 222; persuades Charles to take the field against Philip V.; gains the battle of Almenara; July 20, 1710; and that near Saragossa, Aug. 20; enters Madrid, Sept. 21, 230; retreats to Brihuega; is surprised by the French under Vendôme; fights with him, and surrenders himself and army, Dec. 9, 241; becomes a secretary of state, 364; introduces a law excluding crown pensioners from parliament, 379; negotiates, for a French alliance, with the abbé Dubois, 391; discontinues violent measures against Russia, 392; reverses Gyllenburg's intrigues to the council; disagrees with Townshend, 393; obtains the chief administration of affairs, 393; raised to the peerage, 1717, 397; desires to avert the war with Spain, 1718, 400; obtains the repeal of the occasional Conformity and Schism acts; desires also that of the Test act; and the mitigation of the penal laws against Roman Catholics, 401; his death, caused by a rush of blood into his head during a fit of anger, 1721, 415.

Stanhope, earl, his experiments on the construction of steam-ships, 1794, vii. 40.

Stanhope, Charles, cleared of the charge of bribery brought against him, v. 414.

Stanislaus Leczinsky, set up as king of Poland by Charles XII., v. 198; began to reign, 1704; Augustus restored in 1709, 604; his claim to the throne supported by France on the death of Augustus, 416.

Star-Chamber court instituted by Henry VII. in 1488, ii. 230; extended jurisdiction given to, by Charles I., iii. 346; severe sentence of, on Prynne, in 1633, for publishing the "Histrio-mastix," 353; and on Dr. Leighton for writing against Prelacy, 355; convicts and inflicts heavy punishment, in 1637, on Prynne, Burdett, and Bastwick, for their anti-prelatical writings, 365; fines the city of London 70,000*l.* for an infringement of the conditions on which they held their lands in Ulster, 379.

Staremberg, general, joins general Stanhope in a campaign against Philip of Spain, 1710, v. 233; engages Vendôme at Villa Viciosa, Dec. 10.

Statutes of Labourers, passed in 1351 and 1351, in order to fix their residence, and to establish a scale of wages, i. 522, 523; injustice and inefficiency of, 521.

Steam-boats, Stanhope's experiments in the construction of, vii. 41; introduction of, on the Clyde, the Thames, and Loch Lomond, vii. 522; first employed by the navy in the Birmese war, 631; improvements in, war steamers first employed in battle at the siege of St. Jean d'Acre, 1840, 268.

Steam-engine; Savery's invention; bill for encouraging the, iv. 416; employed in the cotton manufacture, vi. 352; thirty-three million spindles driven in 1256 by, 352; vast improvements in the, made by Watt, 361; Watt and Boulton's Soho works, 362; final establishment of the, and its amazing influence upon the affairs of the world, 363; the sword's antagonist, 363; applied to navigation purposes, vii. 40; viii. 521, 522.

Steam printing machine; its influence in the spread of knowledge, vii. 522.

Steele, Richard, Swift's intimacy with, v. 243; turned out of his employment for satirizing Harley, 243; expelled the House of Commons for writing a pamphlet entitled the "Crisis," 1713; ably defended by Addison and Walpole, 273; starts the "Tatler," April 12, 1709-280; character and aim of this work, 281; his influence and objects as an essayist, 285; with Addison directs the attention of the people to Shakspeare and Milton, 287, 288; his creation of Sir A. Freepport, Captain Sentry, and Will Honeycomb, 280; the Spectator's club, 290, 291; his notice of three plays, 301; description of the prude and coquette by, 305; denounces luxurious dining and the fashion of duelling, 310; endeavours to repress gaming, 312; advocates for mercy towards the rebel lords, 382.

Steinkirk's battle of, Aug. 3, 1692, iv. 566, 567; debate on the, 567, 568.

Stephen, earl of Boulogne, swears to the succession of Matilda, i. 273; departs for England on the death of Henry I., 278; crowned king of England on Dec. 26, 1135, 279; remarkable outbreak of the people against the Forest Laws, and general confusion, 279; preferred by the people to a female sovereign, 280; evil effects of the feudal system under, 280; early reaction of the nobles in favour of Matilda, 281; is attacked by David, king of Scotland, who supports the claim of Matilda, 281; the Scots defeated by the bishop of Durham, with the aid of the Saxons, in the battle of the Standard, 273; reduces some of the disaffected barons, 283; quarrels with the clergy, and arrests the bishops of Salisbury and Lincoln, 287; his brother, the bishop of Winchester, denounces him at a synod, and he is threatened with excommunication, 287; Matilda lands in England to support her claim, and is besieged in Arundel castle, 289; is allowed to pass to Bristol to join the earl of Gloucester, 289; evils of the destructive partisan war, 289; battle of Lincoln, 280; taken prisoner and confined in Bristol castle, 291; his wife expels Matilda from London with the aid of the inhabitants, 292; is exchanged for the earl of Gloucester, who had been captured at Winchester, 294; sympathy of the people for, 294; besieges Matilda in Oxford, 296; turmoil and desolation in the kingdom in 1142, 296; is attacked by Henry II., whom he accepts as his successor, 297; dies Oct. 25, 1154, 298.

Stephenson, George, his rise from the position of engine foreman; his patent safety lamp; constructs a locomotive, 1814; viii. 57; constructs the Darlington and Stockton, and the Liverpool and Manchester railways, 57, 58; his "Rocket" engine; railway works by himself and his son, Robert, 58, 59.

Sterne, Lawrence, his "Tristram Shandy" published, 1759-1767, vi. 389.

Steuben, aide-de-camp to Frederick of Prussia, vi. 198; volunteers into the American service, 198; condition of the American army according to, 204; he drills and re-organizes it, 205; one of the court appointed to try André; he drills for André, 208; renders valuable assistance at the siege of York Town, 1781, 252, in time to take part in the battle of Assye, 222.

Stewart, General, sent to take Rosetta; compelled to retreat, 1807, vii. 254.

Stockdale and Hansard, case off. See Hansard.

Stockholm, treaty of, Mar. 24, 1724, v. 265; Mar. 3, 1813, vii. 643.

Stockings, manufacture of, in the 16th, 17th, 18th and 19th centuries, iv. 403.

Stoke, battle of, in support of Lambert Simnel, on June 4, 1487, ii. 195.

Stonehenge, notice of, i. 24.

Stoford, sir R. admiral; his naval successes against Mehemet Ali, viii. 268, 269.

Storm, great, of 1703; Eddystone lighthouse destroyed by it, iv. 394.

Stormont, lord, maltreated by the Gordon rioters, 1780, vi. 231; secretary of state, 1779, 231; 1782, 603.

Stothard, his paintings; vignettes, vii. 544.

Strabo, statement of, relating to the peaceful communication of the Britons with the Romans, after Cæsar's invasion, i. 20.

Strafford, earl of (sir Thomas Wentworth), supports the Petition of Right in 1628, iii. 337; becomes chief minister of Charles I. after the death of Buckingham, and Ireland were to be governed, 333; explains to Land the principle of thorough, on which England and Ireland were to be governed, 333; proposes to the king a monopoly of salt, 338; strong expressions in favour of the levy of Ship Money, 363; prevented by illness from taking the command of the English forces against the Scots at Newburg, 381; wishes to return to Ireland, but the king pledges himself for his safety, and he remains in London, 382; is impeached by the House of Commons in 1641, 390, 391; is arrested and committed to the Tower, 392; charges brought against, 394; preparation of Westminster Hall for the trial of, 395; conduct of during the trial, 396; his defence, 397; papers of the trial, 395; furnished against, 398; his eloquent speech on, during his defence, 400; a bill of attainder passed against, by both Houses, 404; firm demeanour of, at his execution, on May 12, 1641, 406.

Strafford, lord sir John Byng, accusation against, respecting Oliver the spy, quite unfounded, vii. 459, 460.

Strange, sir Robert, an engraver; his diligence and skill, vi. 377.

Struensee, a favourite of the king of Denmark; a conspiracy organized against by the queen dowager; tried and beheaded, vi. 148, 149.

Strutt, Jedediah, obtains a share in Arkwright's spinning machine, vi. 345.

Stuart, Charles, Edward-Louis Casimir (The Young Pretender), born in 1720, v. 416; called from Rome to Paris to aid in an invasion of Great Britain, 1745; the expedition failing he retires to Gravelines, 491; Jacobitism of England and Scotland, 497, 499; determines upon restoring the fortunes of his house, 500; writes to his father of his intentions, 500; arrives at Eriska, July 23, 1745, 503; his voyage from Belleisle; takes shelter in MacDonald's house; his cold reception, 504; persuades Clanranald and two other chiefs to join him; lands at Borodale, July 25; communicates with the clan chiefs; persuades Cameron of Lochiel to aid in his enterprise, 505; the Glenfinnan gathering, Aug. 15; the standard is raised and the Stuart proclamation read, 506; his own resources and the crippled state of the government's army, 508; marches southward; reaches Perth Sept. 4, having passed Cope marching northward; enters Perth; his cause gains ground; he is joined by Drummond and Murray, 509; crosses the Forth; joined by Lord Kilmarnock; reaches Corstorphine; preparations for defence at Edinburgh, 510; obtains possession of the town, Sept. 17; enters Holyrood house; James VIII. proclaimed king; Sept. 17; enters Aberdeen; lands at Dunbar, and marches towards Edinburgh, 511; battle of Preston-Pans, Sept. 21, in which Cope receives a signal defeat, 512, 513; sleeps at Pinkie house; and returns to Edinburgh, 514; blockade of Edinburgh Castle; intends crossing the border, 515; English opinions of the rebellion, 516; enters Cumberland, Nov. 8; expects a great insurrectionary movement among the English; the inhabitants of Kilmarnock refuse to rise, 523; cause of non-resistance to his advance; Carlisle is invested, Nov. 10, 524; and taken three days after, 525; the dubiousness of his cause; he continues his march into Eng-

