They have seen every item in the store.
He hasn't bought any groceries.
Have you ever been in a big supermarket?
My sister has, but I haven't

SUPERMARKETS

Today is Friday. Ruth Jones and her husband are going shopping. She is going to the supermarket to buy all the food she needs for the week. Mr. Jones has driven their car and has taken his wife to the supermarket. He has gone to a different store to buy shoes and some other items.

Mrs. Jones walks into the big store and greets Mr. Perk the cashier. They have known each other for a long time. He has worked there for five years and she has bought in this supermarket since 1971, when she and her family came to live in the neighborhood.

She looks at everything from aisle to aisle, and during a half an hour she passed by nearly 7,000 different items. She has chosen twenty-three of them. Years of trial and error have taught her and the other housewives how to buy. Every-time they've bought tomatoes they have squeezed them to be sure they are not too ripe.

At the meat counter Mrs. Jones has looked at the large display of packaged meats. She has taken three or four, and has asked the butcher to help her to choose from among them. Every item in her cart has been chosen with care. She has already passed through the check-out line and the clerk Mr. Perk is now putting the groceries in a strong bag for her.

Supermarkets have tried to make shopping very pleasant. They have built cafeterias inside of them; ceilings are sometimes soundproof, and music is piped in. They have departments for almost everything you need, so you can buy not only groceries but garden tools, headache pills, magazines and even nylon stockings.

I haven't been in a supermarket like that. We don't have such supermarkets in town, but anyway supermarkets have become more popular all around the world. From Bangkok to Buenos Aires the old-style grocery store is fast disappearing.

Mr. and Mrs. Jones have left the stores and Mr. Jones has come to take his wife home. They have had a pleasant shopping and they both have made good buys, too.

QUESTIONS

Where is Mrs. Jones going today?
 Is her husband going with her?
 Can Mrs. Jones buy all the food she wants?
 Can housewives make good buys?
 Has Mr. Jones driven his car to the supermarket?
 Has Mr. Perk worked at the supermarket for a long time?
 Has Mrs. Jones seen every item in the store?
 Who has helped Mrs. Jones to choose the meat?
 Who has taken Mrs. Jones home?
 Have they enjoyed shopping?
 When are they going home?
 Can people buy everything in one store?
 Can they have a cup of coffee there?
 Have you ever been in a big supermarket?

THREE

AT THE OFFICE

Mr. Kane: Where are you going after work, Frank?

Frank: To the new mall out of town, the Hill Shopping Center. It's a modern mall. Have you ever been there?

Mr. Kane: My wife has, but I haven't. I've been at the old one several times, but I've never been to this new mall.

Frank: I like that old mall very much. We have bought there ever since it opened, but now Evelyn wants to go there and try it out.

Mr. Kane: That's not a bad idea. She can save a penny here and there. Those new stores offer good savings on nauguración sales.

Frank: Has your wife been there recently?

Mr. Kane: Yes, she has, and she says shopping there is very pleasant. She found wonderful bargains, too.

Frank: Give her our phone number and address. Maybe she can call Evelyn so they can go together to do their shopping sometimes. Here's my pen.

Mr. Kane: Oh, thanks. And perhaps we both can go to the golf club for a while.

Frank: That's a good idea! It's been a long time since I've been out.

Mr. Kane: This Saturday I'm going to stay with some of our boss' friends near the lake. They've got a fishing boat. They are painting it now. I want to go there to do some work, and fish with them. Have you ever sailed on a fishing boat?

Frank: No. I've never done it but I can try it.

Mr. Kane: Well, if you want to go, don't hesitate.

Frank: Oh, thanks. See you there!

Mr. Kane: That's fine, Frank . . . Don't forget your fishing gear.

Frank: I have to buy it this afternoon at the new mall.
