Peace, ho! I bar confusion
Sigh no more, ladies, sigh no more . . .
Sleepest or wakest thou, jolly shepherd?
So sweet a kiss the golden sun gives not
Switold footed thrice the old . . .
Take, O take those lips away . . .
Tell me where is fancy bred
The cod-piece that will house
The fire seven times tried this
The god of love . . .
The master, the swabber, the boatswain and I
The ouzel-cock, so black of hue
The poor soul sat sighing by a sycamore tree
The raging rocks . . .
Then is there mirth in heaven . . .
Then they for sudden joy did weep
They bore him barefac'd on the bier
Thine own true knight
To shallow rivers, to whose falls
To-morrow is Saint Valentine's day
Under the greenwood tree
Was this fair face the cause, quoth she
Wedding is great Juno's crown
What shall he have that kill'd the deer?
When daffodils begin to peer
When daisies pied and violets blue
When gripping grief the heart doth wound
When icicles hang by the wall . . .
When that I was and a little tiny boy
Where the bee sucks, there suck I
While you here do snoring lie . . .
Who doth ambition shun . . .
Who is Silvia? what is she?
Why should this a desert be . . .
Will you buy any tape
You must sing, a-down a-down
You spotted snakes with double tongue
You that choose not by the view . . .
