

Bismarck said:—"A comparison has been drawn between the way in which the English people in 1688, after the banishment of James II., stood up for their own rights, and the way in which the Prussian people are now able to get their rights recognized. Comparisons with foreign nations are always misleading. Russia is dangled before us as a pattern of religious forbearance, and the French and Danish financial systems are recommended to us as patterns of orderly administration. To return to the year 1688, and to the English example—I must beg to direct the attention of honourable members to one fact: At that time the English nation were in a very different position from that of the Prussian people at the present time. Through a century of revolution and civil war it had attained a position in which it had a crown to give away, and with this gift it could exact any conditions it liked, and these the Prince of Orange accepted. On the other hand, the Prussian monarchs owe their position to God's grace and not to the gift of the people; it is a crown not hampered by any conditions; and they have voluntarily ceded to their people certain of their rights—an example which is very rare in history."

PUBLISHED SEMI-MONTHLY.

Bound in tasteful paper covers, at 50 cents each; also in cloth, at 75 cents each (excepting when price is otherwise given).

1. THE STEEL HAMMER. By LOUIS ULBACH, author of "Madame Gosselin."

"'The Steel Hammer,' by Louis Ulbach, is not only a splendid bit of fiction, finely conceived and vividly wrought out, but it has the rare merit of appealing to the two classes that go so far toward making up the general reading public. . . . It is this happy combination of objective and subjective treatment which makes of 'The Steel Hammer' a story worthy of Gaboriau, while at the same time it is a study of the human conscience which might have evolved itself from the mind of Balzac."—The Critic.

2. EVE. A Novel. By S. BARING-GOULD, author of "Red Spider," "Little Tu'penny," etc.

"The machinery of the plot is made the vehicle for vigorous study of character and description of quaint and interesting life in a secluded part of England. Jasper and his brother, Barbara, Eve, and the two seniors, are wrought out with artistic and painstaking skill, and several of the minor personages are studied with hardly less effect. The novel is strong, bright, and eminently readable."—Eclectic Magazine.

3. FOR FIFTEEN YEARS. A Sequel to "The Steel Hammer." By LOUIS ULBACH.

"Though 'The Steel Hammer,' the story to which 'For Fifteen Years' is the sequel, was a fascinating one, it was a comparatively tame prelude to one of the most powerful dénouements possible to conceive. The plots and counter-plots are worked out with a power and devotion which are startling in their intensity."—Baltimore American.

4. A COUNSEL OF PERFECTION. A Novel. By LUCAS MALET, author of "Colonel Enderby's Wife," "Mrs. Lorimer," etc.

"It would require us to go back to Miss Austen to find anything that better deserved the praise of fine form, fine grouping, fine coloring, humorous delineation, and precision of design."—London Spectator.

5. THE DEEMSTER. A Romance. By HALL CAINE.

"The spiritual grandeur of its conception and the tremendous nature of the forces engaged raise it to the region of tragic drama. . . . Grandly conceived and grandly executed."—London Academy.

6. A VIRGINIA INHERITANCE. By EDMUND PENDLETON, author of "A Conventional Bohemian." (In cloth. Price, $1.00.)

" . . . It has an interest and freshness of its own; in parts it is amusing; in parts witty; here and there wise. The courtesy of the Chesters, their oddities, their reckless acceptance of every claim of exorbitant hospitality, their indolent carelessness, their embodiment of the 'hospitable, out-at-elbow, irrelevant, sympathetic South,' are set forth in a manner which has a sort of fascination."—The Saturday Review, London.

Appletons' Town and Country Library.

7. NINETTE: An Idyll of Provence. By the author of "Véra."

"A very charming Provençal idyll. The author of 'Véra' must be reckoned among the very few English writers who are capable of reproducing the atmosphere of Continental life."—The Athenæum.

8. "THE RIGHT HONOURABLE." A Romance of Society and Politics. By JUSTIN MCCARTHY and Mrs. CAMPBELL-PRAED.

"The moral is sound. It is one of duty victoriously achieved though at great cost; and perhaps verisimilitude is not strained by the idealization which imputes to the woman's superior strength of renunciation and moral stamina the successful passage through the last and most fiery trial. Incidentally there is much bright description of fashionable life and people."—New York Tribune.

9. THE SILENCE OF DEAN MAITLAND. By MAXWELL GREY.

"The story culminates in a scene which is almost unequaled and unexampled in fiction. . . . As a tale of spiritual struggle, as a marvelously graphic and vital picture of the action and reaction of human life, 'The Silence of Dean Maitland' is a book that is destined to an extraordinary recognition and permanent fame in literature."—Boston Traveller.

10. MRS. LORIMER: A Study in Black and White. By LUCAS MALET, author of "Colonel Enderby's Wife," "A Counsel of Perfection."

"Mrs. Lorimer' is not only brimful of cleverness, profuse and careless cleverness, as of one rich in intelligence, and of genuine, softly reflective humor, such as critics love; but of power of a kind so separate that it is hard to characterize without quoting in justification the whole book. It is as a story of rare prominence, alike of humor and of pathos, that we recommend 'Mrs. Lorimer.'"—London Spectator.

11. THE ELECT LADY. By GEORGE MACDONALD, author of "Home Again," etc.

"Rich in imaginative beauty and fine insight into the mysteries of spiritual life."—London Spectator.

"There are some good bits of dialogue and strong situations in the book."—The Athenæum.

12. THE MYSTERY OF THE "OCEAN STAR." A Collection of Maritime Sketches. By W. CLARK RUSSELL, author of "The Wreck of the 'Grosvenor,'" etc.

"Mr. Clark Russell occupies a peculiarly happy position in literature. He is absolutely without competitors. Opinions may differ as to the best writer in almost any other line of work, but there is only one fabulist of the sea, and, in one respect, Clark Russell is a better story-teller than any of his colleagues in other branches of fiction."—San Francisco Examiner.

13. ARISTOCRACY. A Novel. (In cloth. Price, $1.00.)

"A very clever and amusing piece of novel-writing is 'Aristocracy,' by an unknown author, who seems to have a sufficient knowledge of the manners and tone of good society in England to satirize them unmercifully, while adhering in a considerable degree to the truth. . . . He also knows how to write an interesting story, and his book has not a dull page in it."—The Sun, New York.

Appletons' Town and Country Library.

14. A RECOILING VENGEANCE. By FRANK BARRETT, author of "His Helpmate," "The Great Hesper." With Illustrations.

"A very pretty, natural, and refreshing story is 'A Recoiling Vengeance.' . . . It is a story told in the first person of a struggle for the inheritance of a wealthy lawyer in a country town, and in its clearness and brightness reminds us not a little of the manner of Anthony Trollope."—London Saturday Review.

15. THE SECRET OF FONTAINE-LA-CROIX. A Novel. By MARGARET FIELD.

The heroine of this story is an Englishwoman, but the events occur principally in France. In the main the story is domestic in character, affording some charming pictures of life in a French château, but scenes in the Franco-German War are also depicted, and the action leads up to a striking and most dramatic situation.

"An interesting story well told."—Christian Union.

"Altogether a delightful story."—Philadelphia Bulletin.

16. THE MASTER OF RATHKELLY. A Novel. By HAWLEY SMART, author of "A False Start," "Breezie Langton," etc.

"The Master of Rathkelly" is an Irish landlord, and the incidents of the story illustrate the nature of the present conflict in Ireland in a striking manner.

17. DONOVAN: A Modern Englishman. A Novel. By EDNA LYALL. New cheap edition. (In cloth. Price, $1.50.)

A cheap edition of "Donovan" has long been called for by those who have recognized its merits, and wished to see its influence extended. It falls within the range of thought stimulated by "Robert Elsmere," and books of its class.

18. THIS MORTAL COIL. A Novel. By GRANT ALLEN.

"Mr. Grant Allen's is a good story, a little burdened with the constant effort for a sparkling narrative, but fairly true to life, and speaks through its characters."—The Athenæum.

19. A FAIR EMIGRANT. By ROSA MULHOLLAND, author of "Marcella Grace," etc.

"The 'fair emigrant' is a young lady who returns to her father's country for the purpose of trying to clear his name from the disgrace of a crime with which he was falsely charged. . . . A very interesting narrative."—The Spectator.

"A capital novel."—Scotsman.

20. THE APOSTATE. A Novel. By ERNEST DAUDET.

"The Apostate" is a novel of much more than ordinary power, and in a field somewhat new. In morals it is unobjectionable, and in style noble and impressive. The translation has been carefully done.

D. APPLETON & CO., PUBLISHERS, 1, 3, & 5 BOND STREET, NEW YORK.

Appletons' Town and Country Library.

21. RALEIGH WESTGATE; or, Epimenides in Maine. By HELEN KENDRICK JOHNSON.

The time of this story is just before and during the rebellion, but the reader is carried back to some curious episodes in the early history of Maine, the traditions of which supply part of the material for the plot.

"Out of the common run of fiction."—Boston Beacon.

"An atmosphere of quaint humor pervades the book."—Christian Inquirer.

22. ARIUS THE LIBYAN: A Romance of the Primitive Church. A new cheap edition. (Also in cloth. Price, $1.25.)

"Portrays the life and character of the primitive Christians with great force and vividness of imagination."—Harper's Magazine.

"Beside this work most of the so-called religious novels fade into insignificance."—Springfield Republican.

23. CONSTANCE, AND CALBOT'S RIVAL. By JULIAN HAWTHORNE.

"The reader will find a fascinating interest in these strange and cleverly told stories which are as ingenious in conception as they are brilliant in development."—Boston Gazette.

24. WE TWO. By EDNA LYALL, author of "Donovan." New cheap edition. (Also in cloth. Price, $1.50.)

"We recommend all novel readers to treat this novel with the care which such a strong, uncommon, and thoughtful book demands and deserves."—London Spectator.

25. A DREAMER OF DREAMS. A Modern Romance. By the author of "Thoth."

"Of an original and artistic type . . . near to being a tremendous feat of fancy."—Athenæum.

"Resembles its predecessor ("Thoth") in the weirdness of the plot and the incisive brilliance of style."—London Literary World.

26. THE LADIES' GALLERY. A Novel. By JUSTIN MCCARTHY and MRS. CAMPBELL-PRAED.

"It is interesting and racy, and abounds in clever sketches of character and in good situations. Both authors are, so to speak, on their native heath. . . . Altogether, the book abounds in amusement."—London Guardian.

"An absorbing, powerful, and artistic work."—London Post.

27. THE REPROACH OF ANNESLEY. By MAXWELL GREY, author of "The Silence of Dean Maitland."

"The Reproach of Annesley" will be welcomed by every reader of "The Silence of Dean Maitland," a novel that has been pronounced by both English and American critics a work possessing striking power and originality.

28. NEAR TO HAPPINESS. A Novel. Translated from the French by FRANK H. POTTER.

"The plot is strong and clearly constructed, and the characters are sketched with marked force and artistic skill. The era of the incidents is that of the Franco-German War, and the point about which they revolve is a tender love-story to which a deep dramatic interest is imparted."—Boston Gazette.

Appletons' Town and Country Library.

29. IN THE WIRE-GRASS. By LOUIS PENDLETON.

"An unusually clever novel is 'In the Wire Grass,' by Louis Pendleton (Appletons). It presents a vivid picture of Southern life by a native of the South, and abounds in incidents and characters racy of the soil. . . . The humor is everywhere bright and genuine, and the action uniformly brisk."—The Sun.

30. LACE. A Berlin Romance. By PAUL LINDAU.

"'Lace,' Lindau's novel, of which the Appletons have just published a thoroughly good translation, gets its name from the fateful roble held in it by a marvelous mantle of Brabant lace. This mantle wanders through the mazes of this story like a specter that will not down, and, rarely beautiful as it is, grows in the end into a veritable robe of Nessus. . . . Altogether, 'Lace' is one of the most effective pieces of work that we have seen for a long time."—Commercial Advertiser.

31. AMERICAN COIN. By the author of "Aristocracy."

A satirical picture of impeccuous English peers in search of fortunes, and of the daughters of American millionaires in search of titles.

"'American Coin' is a remarkably clever and readable story."—N. Y. Herald.

32. WON BY WAITING. By EDNA LYALL.

"The sentiment of the story is delicate and uplifting, and the style is uncommonly spirited and active."—Boston Gazette.

33. THE STORY OF HELEN DAVENANT. By VIOLET FANE.

"Neither Miss Braddon nor the author of 'The House on the Marsh' could have contrived a more ingenious story than that of 'Helen Davenant.'"—The Academy.

34. THE LIGHT OF HER COUNTENANCE. By H. H. BOYSEN, author of "Gunnar," "Idyls of Norway," "A Daughter of the Philistines," etc.

The scenes of this story open in New York, but the action soon shifts to Italy. The characters are mainly American and English. The incidents are picturesque, and the movement animated.

35. MISTRESS BEATRICE COPE; or, Passages in the Life of a Jacobite's Daughter. By M. E. LE CLERC.

"A simple, natural, credible romance, charged with the color of the time and satisfying to the mind of a thoughtful reader."—The Athenæum.

36. KNIGHT-ERRANT. By EDNA LYALL.

"'Knight-Errant' is marked by the author's best qualities as a writer of fiction, and displays on every page the grace and quiet power of her former works."—The Athenæum.

37. IN THE GOLDEN DAYS. By EDNA LYALL.

"The central figure of her story is Algernon Sidney, and this figure she invests with singular dignity and power. Some of the scenes are remarkably vivid. The escape is an admirable narrative, which almost makes one hold one's breath to read."—The Spectator.

Appletons' Town and Country Library.

38. GIRALDI; or, The Curse of Love. By ROSS GEORGE DERING.

"Giraldi is undeniably a clever book; satirical, humorous, and amusing; full of consistent sketching of character; . . . an original and readable novel."—The Saturday Review.

39. A HARDY NORSEMAN. By EDNA LYALL.

"All the quiet power we praised in 'Donovan' is to be found in this new story."—The Athenæum.

40. THE ROMANCE OF JENNY HARLOWE, and Sketches of Maritime Life. By W. CLARK RUSSELL.

"The Romance of Jenny Harlowe, supplemented by other sketches of sea life, offer capital reading. The story is exciting enough to satisfy the most exacting on this score."—The Academy.

41. PASSION'S SLAVE. By RICHARD ASHE-KING.

"Mr. King is a refined and pleasant writer. . . . His tact is generally beyond reproach."—The Athenæum.

42. THE AWAKENING OF MARY FENWICK. By BEATRICE WHITBY.

"We have no hesitation in declaring that 'The Awakening of Mary Fenwick' is the best novel of the kind that we have seen for some years. It is apparently a first effort, and as such is remarkable."—The Athenæum.

43. COUNTESS LORELEY. From the German of RUDOLF MENGER.

"An exciting novel, the scene of which is laid principally in Germany just before and after the Franco-Prussian War. The characters, which embrace besides the two principal ones a Breton duelist, a lion-hearted Englishman, a Russian diplomat, and others, are presented in a spirited manner."—Boston Gazette.

44. BLIND LOVE. By WILKIE COLLINS. With a Preface by WALTER BESANT.

This posthumous novel was unfinished at the time of Mr. Collins's death, although in course of serial publication. By means of the ample notes left by the author, Mr. Besant was enabled to complete it along the lines laid down by the author. "The plot of the novel," says Mr. Besant, "every scene, every situation, from beginning to end, is the work of Wilkie Collins."

45. THE DEAN'S DAUGHTER. By SOPHIE F. F. VEITCH.

"The passages in it which deal with the morally distorted and tragic passion of Vera Dormer recall to some extent the vanished hand of the author of 'Jane Eyre.'"—The Academy.

46. COUNTESS IRENE. A Romance of Austrian Life. By J. FOGERTY.

"This is a charming story, interesting and mouvementé, with some highly dramatic incidents. . . . The picture of Viennese life and manners are admirable, and the descriptions of Austrian country-house life amid the magnificent scenery of the Salzkammergut are most attractive."—Westminster Review.

12mo, paper cover. Price, 50 cents each.

New York: D. APPLETON & CO., Publishers, 1, 3, & 5 Bond Street.

Appletons' Town and Country Library.

47. ROBERT BROWNING'S PRINCIPAL SHORTER POEMS.

Browning was so voluminous a writer that his complete works are practically inaccessible to many readers. The present collection includes everything by which he is best known, except the dramas and very long poems.

48. FROZEN HEARTS. A Romance. By G. WEBB APPLETON.

"A well-laid plot, strong characters, and striking situations, give the story an absorbing interest throughout."—Baltimore American.

"It is a clever, well written, interesting story of Paris in the earlier days of the Orleans succession, rich in Waterloo, the Napoleonic and Bourbon reminiscence, and as clean as clever French authors can make the same subjects unclean."—Brooklyn Eagle.

49. DJAMBEK THE GEORGIAN. A Tale of Modern Turkey. From the German of Von Suttner, by H. M. JEWETT.

A romance in a new field, affording some novel pictures of life, social and political, interwoven with and subordinated to a stirring and romantic love-story.

"Djambek the Georgian strikes us as altogether a spirited and probably faithful presentation of conditions which existed prior to the last Russo-Turkish War, and which have certainly been changed for the better since then, though not through Turkish reforms of any kind."—New York Tribune.

50. THE CRAZE OF CHRISTIAN ENGELHART. By HENRY FAULKNER DARNELL.

"A novel of more than ordinary quality and strength is 'The Craze of Christian Engelhart.' It is marked by vigorous action, original types of character, and a mystic atmosphere enveloping some of the most remarkable passages. As an intellectual effort it deserves high praise."—New York Sun.

51. LAL. By WILLIAM A. HAMMOND, M. D.

"It possesses the great merit of being interesting from beginning to end. The characters are striking, and several of them have an element of originality; the incidents are abundant and effective."—New York Tribune.

52. ALINE. A Novel. By HENRY GRÉVILLE.

53. JOOST AVELINGH. A Dutch Story. By MAARTEN MAARTENS.

"No novel superior to this has appeared in the Town and Country Library, of which it is No 53. . . . The story surprises the fiction readers of the world. . . . The story at times rises into the intense, and descends at last into the 'vale of peace. . . . The story is realistic in a very high degree, and is beautiful as a picture of Holland with its life and politics. . . . To read the story is like passing through all kinds of dangerous roads, with storms, precipices, and raging streams, to come out at last upon a high, central table-land where the sun shines in beauty, the air is full of charm, and the soul dwells in safety and high endeavor for evermore."—Public Opinion.

12mo, paper cover. Price, 50 cents each.

New York: D. APPLETON & CO., Publishers, 1, 3, & 5 Bond Street.

54. KATY OF CATOCTIN; or, The Chain-Breakers. By GEORGE ALFRED TOWNSEND.

"I think the historical value of 'Katy of Catoctin' is great and permanent."—The Hon. JAMES G. BLAINE.

"Katy is a beautiful character, and as a heroine preserves her piety, sincerity, and pure and loving nature to the end."—Brooklyn Eagle.

"Much that passes for authentic history is not more literally true than this novel, and is certainly not half as readable."—Journal of Commerce.

55. THROCKMORTON. By MOLLY ELLIOT SEAWELL.

"The plot of the story is excellent—full of quick turns and surprises. . . . The way in which Judith falls in love with the hero, notwithstanding the uncanny barrier that lies between the two, and the way that barrier disintegrates and fades away, in the end, is well worked out, and in a fashion to charm all who believe that the course of true love ought, at least, to run smooth."—The Commercial Advertiser.

"Taken as a whole, it is an entertaining picture of Southern family life, and as such recommends itself to lovers of romance, and is an excellent addition to Appletons' Town and Country Library."—The Springfield Republican.

56. EXPATRIATION. A Novel. By the author of "Aristocracy."

"This skit on the bad manners of the titled Briton and his American imitator is animated and biting. . . . The story will have a short life and a merry one; and it deserves commendation in so far as it preaches a sturdy Americanism and ridicules the Anglomaniac's effort to seem other than he is."—The New York Tribune.

"'Expatriation' . . . is a bright and clever novel by an author whose former work attracted considerable attention for its biting, sometimes almost violent satire. It is a book which somehow carries on its face testimony that convinces us that its satire is deserved, and so it makes us blush for ourselves."—The Chicago Times.

57. GEOFFREY HAMPSTEAD. A Novel. By THOMAS S. JARVIS.

"There are so many vivid pictures in 'Geoffrey Hampstead' . . . that it is hard to pick out a chief one among them in the matter of narrative, emphasis, or of tragic force; and, after all the passages of intenser character have been considered, it is still difficult to determine whether they are not all made secondary by the great interest of the philosophical discussions in which this strong and versatile book abounds."—The New York Sun.

"'Geoffrey Hampstead' . . . is a novel of much ingenuity and force. While it is a story of incident, it presents several keen, analytic studies of character also, and the novelist makes the incident illustrate the characters without going into long, tiresome analysis and description."—The Chicago Times.

58. DMITRI. By F. W. BAIN, M. A.

"The story of the impostor Dmitri, the wandering monk who learned soldiering from the Cossacks of the Dnieper, and, pretending to be the son of Ivan the Terrible, overthrew Boris and Feodor Godrunoff, and reigned for a while in their stead, is one of the most remarkable chapters in Russian history, and might well be taken as the framework of an historical novel."—The Saturday Review.

"He has got a capital subject—the story of the false Czar—and he has treated it with freshness and spirit. 'Dmitri' is a decidedly promising first effort."—The Athenæum.

12mo, paper cover. Price, 50 cents each.

New York: D. APPLETON & CO., Publishers, 1, 3, & 5 Bond Street.

THE ICE AGE IN NORTH AMERICA, and its Bearings upon the Antiquity of Man. By G. FREDERICK WRIGHT, D. D., LL. D., F. G. S. A., Professor in Oberlin Theological Seminary; Assistant on the United States Geological Survey. With an Appendix on "The Probable Cause of Glaciation," by WARREN UPHAM, F. G. S. A., Assistant on the Geological Surveys of New Hampshire, Minnesota, and the United States. With 147 Maps and Illustrations. One vol., 8vo, 640 pages. Cloth, $5.00.

The writer has personally been over a large part of the field containing the wonderful array of facts of which he is now permitted to write, but he is one only of many investigators who have been busily engaged for the past fifteen years (to say nothing of what had been previously accomplished) in collecting facts concerning the Glacial period in this country. His endeavor has been to make the present volume a fairly complete digest of all these investigations.

The numerous maps accompanying the text have been compiled from the latest data. The illustrations are more ample than have ever before been applied to the subject, being mostly reproductions of photographs taken by various members of the United States Geological Survey in the course of the past ten years, many of them by the author himself.

THE GREAT ICE AGE, and its Relation to the Antiquity of Man. By JAMES GEIKIE, F. R. S. E., of H. M. Geological Survey of Scotland. With Maps and Illustrations. 12mo. Cloth, $2.50.

A systematic account of the Glacial Epoch in England and Scotland, with special references to its changes of climate.

PRINCIPLES OF GEOLOGY; or, The Modern Changes of the Earth and its Inhabitants, considered as illustrative of Geology. By Sir CHARLES LYELL, Bart. Illustrated with Maps, Plates, and Woodcuts. Two vols., royal 8vo. Cloth, $8.00.

The "Principles of Geology" may be looked upon with pride, not only as a representative of English science, but as without a rival of its kind anywhere. Growing in fulness and accuracy with the growth of experience and observation in every region of the world, the work has incorporated with itself each established discovery, and has been modified by every hypothesis of value which has been brought to bear upon, or been evolved from, the most recent body of facts.

THE HISTORY OF ANCIENT CIVILIZATION.

A Hand-book based upon M. Gustave Ducoudray's "Histoire Sommaire de la Civilisation." Edited by the Rev. J. VERSCHOYLE, M. A. With numerous Illustrations. Large 12mo. Cloth, $1.75.

"With M. Ducoudray's work as a basis, many additions having been made, derived from special writers, Mr. Verschoyle has produced an excellent work, which gives a comprehensive view of early civilization. . . . As to the world of the past, the volume under notice treats of Egypt, Assyria, the Far East, of Greece and Rome in the most comprehensive manner. It is not the arts alone which are fully illustrated, but the literature, laws, manners, and customs, the beliefs of all these countries are contrasted. If the book gave alone the history of the monuments of the past it would be valuable, but it is its all-around character which renders it so useful. A great many volumes have been produced treating of a past civilization, but we have seen none which in the same space gives such varied information."—The New York Times.

GREAT LEADERS: Historic Portraits from the Great Historians. Selected, with Notes and Brief Biographical Sketches, by G. T. FERRIS. With sixteen engraved Portraits. 12mo. Cloth, $1.75.

The Historic Portraits of this work are eighty in number, drawn from the writings of PLUTARCH, GROTE, GIBBON, CURTIUS, MOMMSEN, FROUDE, HUME, MACAULAY, LECKY, GREEN, THIERS, TAINE, PRESCOTT, MOTLEY, and other historians. The subjects extend from Themistocles to Wellington.

"Every one perusing the pages of the historians must have been impressed with the graphic and singularly penetrative character of many of the sketches of the distinguished persons whose doings form the staple of history. These pen-portraits often stand out from the narrative with luminous and vivid effect, the writers seeming to have concentrated upon them all their powers of penetration and all their skill in graphic delineation. Few things in literature are marked by analysis so close, discernment so keen, or effects so brilliant and dramatic."—From the Preface.

LIFE OF THE GREEKS AND ROMANS, described from Ancient Monuments. By E. GUHL and W. KONER. Translated from the third German edition by F. HUEFFER. With 543 Illustrations. 8vo. Cloth, $2.50.

"The result of careful and unwearied research in every nook and cranny of ancient learning. Nowhere else can the student find so many facts in illustration of Greek and Roman methods and manners."—Dr. C. K. Adams's Manual of Historical Literature.

A NOVEL OF OUT-DOOR LIFE

In Town and Country Library.

GEOFFREY HAMPSTEAD.

BY A NEW CANADIAN WRITER,

THOMAS STINSON JARVIS.

12mo. Paper cover, 50 cents.

From THE NEW YORK SUN.

"There are so many vivid pictures in 'Geoffrey Hampstead' . . . that it is hard to pick out a chief one among them in the matter of narrative, emphasis, or of tragic force; and, after all the passages of intenser character have been considered, it is still difficult to determine whether they are not all made secondary by the great interest of the philosophical discussions in which this strong and versatile book abounds."

From THE CHICAGO TIMES.

"'Geoffrey Hampstead' . . . is a novel of much ingenuity and force. While it is a story of incident, it presents several keen, analytic studies of character also, and the novelist makes the incident illustrate the characters without going into long, tiresome analysis and description."

From THE BOSTON BEACON.

" . . . The action is rapid, the dramatic interest well sustained, dialogue original and pointed, and there is a definite ethical purpose. . . . 'Geoffrey Hampstead' is a novel well worth perusal. It is long since the literature of our Northern neighbors has given us anything half as good."

From THE CHICAGO EVENING JOURNAL.

"A new novel by a new novelist, written in the breezy old style of Dickens, rather than with the delicate touch of Daudet. . . . introduces its readers to several very agreeable characters, merged in a coterie of snobs, whose Vanity Fair, in the fashionable quarter of Toronto, is described with the observant eyes and cynical sneer of Thackeray."

A NEW HISTORICAL ROMANCE.

DMITRI.

A TALE OF OLD RUSSIA.

By F. W. BAIN, M. A.,
FELLOW OF ALL SOULS COLLEGE, OXFORD.

12mo. Paper cover, 50 cents.

NOTICES FROM THE ENGLISH PRESS.

From THE SATURDAY REVIEW.

"The story of the impostor Dmitri, the wandering monk who learned soldiering from the Cossacks of the Dnieper, and, pretending to be the son of Ivan the Terrible, overthrew Boris and Feodor Godrunoff, and reigned for a while in their stead, is one of the most remarkable chapters in Russian history, and might well be taken as the framework of an historical novel."

From THE ATHENAEUM.

"He has got a capital subject—the story of the false Czar—and he has treated it with freshness and spirit. 'Dmitri' is a decidedly promising first effort."

From THE GLOBE.

"Mr. Bain tells the tale in a rapid, concentrated fashion, with a dramatic sense which strongly impresses the reader. One can only begin to go from page to page until the end is reached."

From THE ABERDEEN JOURNAL.

"The story is interesting and almost incredible, but Mr. Bain's narrative does not differ substantially from the historical account."

From THE MANCHESTER EXAMINER.

"The work may be fairly characterized as dramatic, and the freshness of the interest it excites will secure for it, at the hands of all who begin its acquaintance, attention throughout."

New York: D. APPLETON & CO., Publishers, 1, 3, & 5 Bond St.
